3 bills sent to governor

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bills covering rock festivals, the disposal of solid waste and ambulatory surgical centers were sent to the desk of Gov. Christopher S. Bond Thursday as the Missouri Legislature continued grinding out measures in its last week of work.

The solid waste disposal bill significantly weakens the law which requires local governments to arrange for trash collection service and collect fees for the service. The bill eliminates that requirement and exempts towns of less than 500 population and 111 of the state's 114 counties from the rest of its provisions.

The rock festival regulation bill carries an emergency clause, meaning it would take effect as soon as Bond would sign it.

Sparked by the Ozark Music Festival controversy last year, the bill requires promoters to obtain a license from counties where the event would be staged. It covers those festivals which would attract more than 5,000 persons within a 12-hour period. St. Louis city and county are exempted from the bill.

It is watered down significantly from the version originally introduced by Sen. Richard Webster, who had it requiring promoters to post large fees and provide certain amounts of sanitary facilities and drinking water.

The surgical center bill allows physicians to pool their resources to provide overnight medical centers where minor surgery could be made.

Sponsors of the bill said it would reduce medical costs incurred by patients who would have to go to the hospital otherwise. It requires insurance companies to cover the cost of the operations if the companies would have done so under their policies in the event the operations were completed in a hospital.

The Senate sent a number ot House-approved bills back to the lower chamber after it amended them.

They included a school bus inspection measure and the so-called "open window" bill, which requires municipalities and other taxing bodies to hold public hearings on their tax levy.

The bill also requires taxing bodies to base their tax rates on the present year's assessed valuation rather than that of the previous year.

Ford unveils plans to spur power plants

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford unveiled today proposals designed to spur the building of new power plants through liberalized tax write-offs and tax-deferred treatment of utility dividends that are reinvested.

Ford, in a statement, said he accepted and endorsed all recommendations on the subject presented to him by his labor-management committee that studied ways to hasten utility plant construction and the conversion of oil and gas-fired plants to use of coal as a power source.

Secretary of Labor John Dunlop told reporters the proposals would result in a tax break for utilities in fiscal year 1976 of between $500 million and $1 billion. He said members of the labor-management committee would carry the proposals to Congress personally.

At a briefing, Federal Energy Administrtor Frank Zarb said the amount of energy the nation generates from nuclear power could increase from 2 per cent to about 20 per cent by the late 1980s "if we can get this program nd solve other problems such as safeguards and disposal of nuclear wastes."

In a report to Ford dated May 21, the committee lamented the deferral or cancellation of utility construction projects and said this "may be expected to result in future energy shortages and serious restrictions to economic expansion."

—Granting of a 12 per cent investment tax credit to utilities for an indefinite period, with application of the credit to work already in progress. Congress recently boosted the tax credit for utilities to 10 per cent from 4 per cent for a two-year period, but the committee said this did not go far enough.

—"The urgent need for equity capital in the electric utility industry," said the panel, "should be met by a legislative provision that dividends which are reinvested in new issue common stock of the company have tax deferred."

—Extention beyond the scheduled Dec. 31 expiration of a program for five-year fast tax writeoffs of pollution control facilities. In addition, Ford and the committee recommended the same favored tax treatment be granted for the expense of converting power plants to the use of coal.

—"Stretch out, as necessary, present environmental restrictions on energy production and use to reduce energy consumption and facilitate expansion of domestic energy output."

The labor-management committee began its report to Ford by estimating that at the end of last year utilities had postponed or canceled the building of 106 nuclear power plants and 129 coal-fired plants.

It said this "jeopardizes our national objective of lesser dependence on imported oil, threatens economic growth and is likely to counter efforts to reduce high unemployment."

Among the panel's other recommendations were these:

—Depreciation for tax purposes on utility construction spending as it occurs, provided such costs are included in a utility's rate base.

—Extension of the Price-Anderson Nuclear Indemnity Coverage Act.

—Federal efforts to encourage greater use of coal and nuclear energy by utilities.

Tinnin says SeMo request fully funded

JEFFERSON CITY — State Sen. Nelson B. Tinnin, D-Hornersville, has denied that he cut $600,000 from the appropriation requested by Southeast Missouri State University.

Tinnin said the appropriation of $9,219,146 was exactly the same amount as requested by the university, along with a supplemental appropriation of $275,385.

Tinnin has been accused of cutting the funds from the amount appropriated by the House of Representatives. House Bill 7 shows state aid appropriations originally passed were $10,230,480.

Final appropriations were $9,494,531, including the supplemental appropriation.

A spokesman for Southeast Missouri State University said the $10 million figure was passed by the House, but later cut back to the university's request.

Tinnin said the confusion arose because the House was using a different formula to figure appropriations than the one that had been used during the past two years.

Since the house could not prove that the new formula was better, the Senate recast the figures under the old formula, which resulted in the difference in funds, Tinnin said.

Teuton cites need for industrial park

Sikeston needs an industrial park badly, according to Bill Teuton, economic development specialist for Union Planters National Bank of Memphis, Tenn.

Teuton spoke to members of the Bootheel Industrial Development council Thursday night at the Holiday Inn.

In a private interview before his speech, Teuton said that any community that has been successful in attracting industry has had industrial land available.

Teuton said he often refers prospects to the Bootheel, but seldom has he referred them to Sikeston. If the community doesn't have land set aside at a definite price, Teuton said it is a waste of time to send company representatives here.

Teuton said that if an industrial park is established here, Sikeston will be put on his list of recommended communities.

Teuton told the group the Mid-South region has had unparalleled growth in the last 20 years by proving that industry can make a profit here. He said Missouri has led in the number of industrial investments during that time.

During the past 20 years, any community that did not get its share of industry has only itself to blame, Teuton said.

People in some towns sat on their porches, saying the town was so nice business would want to locate there without any inducement, Teuton said. However, business just passed them by to go to the places where the community attitude was more progressive.

The big problems facing industrial development today are political interference.

A recent study by the American Bar Association suggested that every state should establish an industrial sitting board. The board would exist so that any community could protest and block establishment of an industry in another community, Teuton said. In other words, anyone in Jefferson City could protest the opening of a plant in Sikeston and block it by showing that it would be better located elsewhere.

The proposal appears to be dead, but Teuton warned it may crop up again in the future.

Other proposals restrictive to business expansion are now being studied in Congress, Teuton said. So far none have passed, but all of them could, he said.

Cape pilot dies in crash

CHESTERFIELD, Mo. (AP) — An experienced pilot flying a specially built racing plane to an air show was killed Thursday night when the aircraft crashed into power lines and exploded while taking off from Spirit of St. Louis Airport.

Killed in the crash was Winston Fraser, 32, of Cape Girardeau.

An investigation into the cause of the crash continued, but Norm Bennett, the owner of the aircraft, said the accident occurred because Fraser was apparently going too fast on takeoff.

Wilson draws 10 years

BENTON-- Willie James Wilson Jr., 26, of Sikeston was denied probation in Scott County Circuit Court Thursday by Judge Marshall Craig, who ordered Wilson committed for 10 years in custody of the State Department of Corrections for second-degree murder.

A Circuit Court jury had found Wilson guilty of second-degree murder on May 16, in connection with the shooting death of Clarence Love, 58, of Sikeston on Nov. 27, 1974.

Prosecuting Attorney Jim Moore had asked that Wilson be found guilty of first-degree murder.

Wilson's attorneys did not argue for acquittal, but asked the jury to return a verdict of manslaughter, rather than murder in first or second degree.

Witnesses for the defense testified that Love drank a lot, had tendencies toward violence when drunk and had been drinking heavily the day of the shooting. Wilson testified that Love had threatened to kill hom.

The state refuted the arguments of the defense by pointing out that even though Love was carrying an open knife, it was not in the pocket Wilson claimed it was and that since Love was shot more than once, the shooting could not have been self-defense.

Two other cases were decided Thursday by Judge Craig.

Edward Lee White, found guilty on May 8 of felonious assault and attempted rape on May 22, 1974, was placed on probation. He had been sentenced in May to three years in custody of the Department of Corrections.

Donald W. Campbell, charged with breaking into Almar Book Store in Sikeston on March 31, pleaded guilty. Punishment was taken under advisement by Judge Craig.

8 hurt in area auto accidents

Eight persons were injured in two area traffic accidents Thursday, according to the highway patrol.

Six of the injuries occurred in a two-car accident at 7:20 a.m. on Highway 60 at Wyatt.

The patrol said a panel truck driven by Albert Kimble, 67, of Charleston slowed at an intersection and was struck from behind by a car driven by Charlie Evans, 24, of Chicago.

Kimble was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital at Sikeston with serious injuries, according to the patrol report.

Five passengers in the Evnans car received minor injuries, including Shirley Hughes, 15, of Canton, Miss., and Ruthie Hughes, 19, Ella Hughes, age not listed, Leaksia Evans, 2, and Martrice Evans, 4, all of Chicago.

Both cars were eastbound and the Evans car was attempting to pass when the accident occurred.

At 2:30 p.m., a car driven by Eddie Dean Moore, 17, of Chaffee struck a pedestrian, Michael Campbell, 13, of Chaffee on Route RA half a mile east of Chaffee.

The patrol said the Campbell boy was taken to Chaffee General Hospital for treatment of undisclosed injuries and Moore received minor injuries.

The accident occurrred when the Moore car came around a curve and the boy ran across the road into the path of the car.

Car recovered

DEXTER — The Dexter Police Department received a report Thursday that a car stolen June 6 from Keating's Motors on Highway 25 has been recovered in St. Louis.

The car was recovered by St. Louis police. No arrests have been made.

Court to ask for funds

BENTON—The Scott County Court Thursday instructed County Clerk Bob Kielhofner to write a letter to Lionel Murray, District 10 engineer for the Missouri State Highway Department, requesting $40,021 that has been allocated to the county.

The letter complies with instructions from State Rep. Fred DeField of Charleston who advised the court the money was available for immediate use upon application. The money will be used for improvements on county roads and bridges.

The court reappointed Mrs. Robert Rosenquist of Kelso to the Riverside Regional Library board of directors after Mrs. Ray Marshall and Mrs. Albert Dame of Sikeston Route One, members of the board, appeared before the court to request the reappointment.

House okays massive changes in criminal code

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — With the end of the session less than 72 hours away, the Missouri House gave final approval today to a massive revision of the state's criminal code.

Action on the bill came after 22 of 29 amendments to the Senate-passed measure were adopted. The final vote, 97-56, followed agreement of the House to cut off debate even though there were still a number of proposed amendments to be offered.

Because of the large number of changes made by the House during four days of debate on the bill, the measure is expected to go to a House-Senate conference committee for negotiation of the differences.

During a sometimes stormy session Thursday night, the House rejected an attempt to include a repeal of the ban on Sunday sales in the measure.

Rep. Phillip Scaglia, D-Kansas City, who has made unsuccessful efforts over the past years to repeal the so-called Blue Law, offered the repeal measure as an amendment to the 299-page revision bill, calling it merely an amendment to repeal "an archaic law that is costing the state millions in tax dollars."

But before any debate could begin on the measure, which was killed in committee in the form of a bill earlier this year, Normandy Democrat Wayne Goode asked that debate be cut off.

With many members absent, the required votes were only obtained after Speaker Richard Rabbitt of St. Louis ordered that all absent members be called by name.

The final vote on the repeal proposal was taken by voice vote although both Scaglia and Independence Democrat Clarence Heflin were on their feet shouting for a rollcall. Rabbitt declined to recognized them and later said the request for a rollcall had not been made at the proper time.

Another member was immediately recognized after Rabbitt announced defeat of the Scaglia amendment, but both Scaglia and Heflin refused to take their seats, both continuing their shouts for a rollcall.

Finally after a short exchange with Rabbitt, Scaglia threw one of his bill binders against the front wall of the chamber, retrieved it, threw it in a nearby wastebasket and then walked from the chamber, glaring at the speaker's rostrum.

He returned to the chamber later and was trying to gain recognition again when the session ended.

Earlier in the day, the House narrowly adopted a proposal to legalize "friendly gambling," despite mention that the change in state law would not change the constitutional prohibition against all gambling.

"All we're saying is that we're not going to punish people for violating our Constitution," Hannibal Democrat Harold Volkmer pointed out.

The proposal, approved on a 76-72 vote, would allow gambling if it occurs in a private place, no one benefits economically except through normal winnings, all persons have an equal chance at winning and no minors are involved.

The House also adopted amendments expanding provisions of the mandatory sentencing section for persons convicted of crimes involving guns to cover all deadly weapons as well, and to lengthen the maximum sentences that can be levied under the proposed code for felonies.

Another amendment adopted to the bill would limit the instances a rape victim's past sexual experiences could be brought out in court. It would only allow such information if it is used to prove consent on the part of the alleged rape victim.

Defeated, however, was a proposal to require all persons convicted of burglary to submit to tests to determine if they are narcotics addicts. If that were determined, they would not be eligible for probation or pardon on the burglary charge unless they agreed to participate in an approved drug rehabilitation program.

"All I'm trying to do is keep the junkies off the streets," said sponsor Thomas Zych, D-St. Louis. "If we can't do something to keep the junkies out, we're in bad shape."

But the proposal was turned back after several members pointed out that it would be an unconstitutional violation of rights to require a person to submit to such tests.

Sen. Ike Skelton, D-Lexington, who sponsored the bill in that chamber, declined to comment on any of the 20 changes adopted so far, although he did say that two or three of them worried him, including one legalizing homosexuality for persons 18 years and older.

But Skelton expressed optimism that a revision of the 140-year-old criminal code could be accomplished this session. If approved, it would go into effect on Oct. 1, 1977, ending more than six years of work by the legislature and a special commission.

3 bills sent to governor

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bills covering rock festivals, the disposal of solid waste and ambulatory surgical centers were sent to the desk of Gov. Christopher S. Bond Thursday as the Missouri Legislature continued grinding out measures in its last week of work.

House okays massive changes in criminal code

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — With the end of the session less than 72 hours away, the Missouri House gave final approval today to a massive revision of the state's criminal code.

Action on the bill came after 22 of 29 amendments to the Senate-passed measure were adopted. The final vote, 97-56, followed agreement of the House to cut off debate even though there were still a number of proposed amendments to be offered.

Because of the large number of changes made by the House during four days of debate on the bill, the measure is expected to go to a House-Senate conference committee for negotiation of the differences.

During a sometimes stormy session Thursday night, the House rejected an attempt to include a repeal of the ban on Sunday sales in the measure.

Rep. Phillip Scaglia, D-Kansas City, who has made unsuccessful efforts over the past years to repeal the so-called Blue Law, offered the repeal measure as an amendment to the 299-page revision bill, calling it merely an amendment to repeal "an archaic law that is costing the state millions in tax dollars."

But before any debate could begin on the measure, which was killed in committee in the form of a bill earlier this year, Normandy Democrat Wayne Goode asked that debate be cut off.

With many members absent, the required votes were only obtained after Speaker Richard Rabbitt of St. Louis ordered that all absent members be called by name.

The final vote on the repeal proposal was taken by voice vote although both Scaglia and Independence Democrat Clarence Heflin were on their feet shouting for a rollcall. Rabbitt declined to recognized them and later said the request for a rollcall had not been made at the proper time.

Another member was immediately recognized after Rabbitt announced defeat of the Scaglia amendment, but both Scaglia and Heflin refused to take their seats, both continuing their shouts for a rollcall.

Finally after a short exchange with Rabbitt, Scaglia threw one of his bill binders against the front wall of the chamber, retrieved it, threw it in a nearby wastebasket and then walked from the chamber, glaring at the speaker's rostrum.

He returned to the chamber later and was trying to gain recognition again when the session ended.

Earlier in the day, the House narrowly adopted a proposal to legalize "friendly gambling," despite mention that the change in state law would not change the constitutional prohibition against all gambling.

"All we're saying is that we're not going to punish people for violating our Constitution," Hannibal Democrat Harold Volkmer pointed out.

The proposal, approved on a 76-72 vote, would allow gambling if it occurs in a private place, no one benefits economically except through normal winnings, all persons have an equal chance at winning and no minors are involved.

The House also adopted amendments expanding provisions of the mandatory sentencing section for persons convicted of crimes involving guns to cover all deadly weapons as well, and to lengthen the maximum sentences that can be levied under the proposed code for felonies.

Another amendment adopted to the bill would limit the instances a rape victim's past sexual experiences could be brought out in court. It would only allow such information if it is used to prove consent on the part of the alleged rape victim.

Defeated, however, was a proposal to require all persons convicted of burglary to submit to tests to determine if they are narcotics addicts. If that were determined, they would not be eligible for probation or pardon on the burglary charge unless they agreed to participate in an approved drug rehabilitation program.

"All I'm trying to do is keep the junkies off the streets," said sponsor Thomas Zych, D-St. Louis. "If we can't do something to keep the junkies out, we're in bad shape."

But the proposal was turned back after several members pointed out that it would be an unconstitutional violation of rights to require a person to submit to such tests.

Sen. Ike Skelton, D-Lexington, who sponsored the bill in that chamber, declined to comment on any of the 20 changes adopted so far, although he did say that two or three of them worried him, including one legalizing homosexuality for persons 18 years and older.

But Skelton expressed optimism that a revision of the 140-year-old criminal code could be accomplished this session. If approved, it would go into effect on Oct. 1, 1977, ending more than s'ρ years of work by the legislature and a special commission.

THE B-1 BOMBER
(Part I)

Congressional critics of a strong U.S. strategic defense posture have taken special aim at the B-1 bomber program, which has been under development for five years. But they're not alone. The Soviet Union likewise would love to see the project scrapped.

"In the original SALT talks the Soviets insisted vigorously and fought hardest for us to stop the continuation of the B-1 bomber." Congressman F.Edward Hebert (D-La.), quoting Ambassador Alexis Johnson during the recent House debate on the defense appropriations bill, declared:

"In the agreement reached in the SALT talks, we do not find any mention of the word 'bomber.'" Hebert, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, continued, "Now we are in the second phase of the SALT talks, and do the Members know the language we find in it today? Bombers. Bombers ... they want that B-1 included in the limitation of our firearms so as to reduce it and bring it in."

An examination of the sleek new B-1, which is scheduled for production early in the 1980s, (unless Congress derails it first) shows clearly why the Soviet Union wants to keep it out of the U.S. arsenal.

The B-1 is scheduled to replace the aging B-52 as the backbone of the bomber component of our strategic triad, made up of bombers, submarine-launched missiles, and land-based missiles. It is indisputably superior to the B-52 in the following ways: a stronger airframe structure will allow it to better withstand the blast effects of nuclear missiles; it can fly at supersonic speed; and it can operate well at both high altitudes (like the B-52) and at treetop level (unlike the B-52).

The superior speed and ability to operate at low altitudes are particularly important in eluding enemy radar detection and defenses. According to the Pentagon, the B-52 shows up 20 times larger than the B-1 on radar screens.

The USSR today is outspending the United States by about two-to-one in beefing up its strategic forces. even more ominous is its selection of weapons — including "monster" missiles such as the SS-9 and SS-18 — which give all the earmarks of opting for a first-strike capability.

In this sobering setting, it would be the height of folly for the United states to abandon its strategic options, which must include a modern bomber fleet. The B-1 answers that need perfectly.

DOMINOES OR CARDS?

The "domino theory" has been given new credence by the recent events in Southeast Asia. First Cambodia, then South Vietnam. Will Laos and Thailand be the next to fall? Then Burma, Malaysia, South Korea, the Philippines?

According to the theory, there is an inevitability to the process. If one domino is permitted to tumble, the others, standing in line, will collapse in turn.

The theory at least has the virtue of being easily and vividly pictured — and many editorial cartoonists have done just that — and therein may lie its subtle danger.

If an image is what we need, it would be more accurate and useful to admit that what we attempted to prop up in Indochina at such great cost was not a row of solid dominoes but a flimsy house of cards. Its collapse need not have adverse repercussions elsewhere — unless, of course, the other governments we fear will be next are of similarly insubstantial construction.

And that, unfortunately, may be precisely the problem.

GROW YOUR OWN AND SAVE A LOT THIS SUMMER

Willingness to postpone consumption now for tomorrow's national gains is deeply-rooted in most Americans. When war or other national crisis threatens our way of life, we as a people have time and again shown ourselves capable of uniting towards a common goal.

"The victory garden," a family plot of land devoted to home-grown vegetables became a symbol of patriotism during World War II. Today, as Americans fight another war—this one against inflation— "Returning To The Earth" is enjoying popularity.

The early days of Spring are the time for planning and planting your own "inflation garden." It makes sense. You save money; enjoy fresher and tastier vegetables; and receive regular, moderate amounts of fresh air and exercise. Gardening provides an inexpensive means of recreation for the whole family.

You needn't start big. Experts tell us even a small 10' by 25' plot can produce a lot, depending upon your own ambition. You probably will need professional advice on what crops grow best in your local climate and soil. The right tools are also essential, and if you plan to can part of your crop, study proper procedures beforehand.

By following these simple steps, you and your family can reap the reward of good eating throughout summer and into next winter—aiding our economy besides!

DILEMMA RESOLVED

The directors of London's exclusive male-only Carlton Club had a tough decision to make. Since its founding in 1832 the club had admitted women only if accompanied by a member—and even then only to an annex dining room.

Dilemma: What to do about Margaret Thatcher, whose position as leader of the Conservative Party made it deucedly awkward to exclude her? Solution: She was made an honorary member, and seated at the head of the main dining room. There's hope for the British if they can cut through Gordian knots so handily.—The Daily Dunklin Democrat, Kennett, Mo.

A DESTRUCTIVE COURSE

Deeply imbedded in the American character is the concept that all competition is good. But arbitrarily-induced competition affecting a regulated public utility can set the stage for deterioration of service and high costs for the majority of consumers. This is hardly a result that could be described as being in the public interest. Such competition is precisely what some, including Federal Communications Commission regulatory authorities, prescribe for the U.S. telecommunications system.

The problem is that if customers are allowed greater freedom to connect their own telephone equipment directly to the nationwide network, experience has shown that high standards of service will be impaired as telephone carriers

The problem is that if customers are allowed greater freedom to connect their own telephone equipment directly to the nationwide network, experience has shown that high standards of service will be impaired as telephone company controls of equipmer' quality and maintenance is weakened.

If more and more carriers providing special communication services are permitted to take over from regulated telephone companies many of their most profitable business customers, the end result will be increasingly higher rates for tens of millions of average small business and residential telephone users. For most of us, this adds up to higher costs for poorer service.

The nation's telephone companies are bound to provide service to all who want it at the most reasonable rates possible. They have total end-to-end responsibility for service and system performance. Value of service pricing in which higher charges to business for special services allow lower charges to residential customers, has built universal service. Many other nations have been down the road of interconnection ofcustomer-provided equipment and experienced its unsatisfactory consequences.

Only a few would benefit from contrived and distorted competition in the U.S. telephone industry. The majority of people would suffer as the traditional objective of serving the common good under public regulation fell by the wayside in a rising competitive scramble for the most lucrative parts of the telecommunications business. The U.S. telephone system is an invaluable national resource. To disrupt and undermine it for transitory, short-run advantage would be a regulatory mistake of unforgivable proportions.

DOCTORS FOR RURAL AREAS

Only 37 per cent of Kansas' physicians practice in the rural sections of the state.

Fortunately, this inadequacy may be repaired by a regionalization plan being refined at the University of Kansas School of Medicine.

In oversimplified terms, the plan would:

Designate as primary care centers about 60 towns with populations of 2,000-3,000 where several family doctors would serve in group practice in a small hospital.

Twelve towns of more than 10,000 would be designated secondary care centers where larger groups of doctors, including some specialists, would practice in larger hospitals.

Major care centers in Witchita Kansas City and perhaps eventually Topeka would be utilized for patients with serious problems.

Transportation systems would be organized and operated by communities to get people who have no personal means of transportation to the centers.

The American Medical Association, in an understatement, has recognized such rural areas as "medically deprived." In Washington, D.C. there is one doctor for every 140 persons. But in Southwestern New Mexico, only three physicians care for 95,000 inhabitants.

In addition to the deficit of physicians in Kansas, there is the matter of geographic distribution. This problem, which has become more acute during the past 20 years, is particularly evident in the rural areas.

Ninety-nine counties fall short of the national physician ratio, having less than one physician for 629 persons.

Only six counties exceed this ratio.

Data from the Kansas Regional Medical Program show two well-recognized problems with physician distribution in the state--a proportionately large concentration of physicians in urban areas and an aged physician population in rural areas.

These factors will be increasingly important in the state's rural areas since they can expect to lose, through death or retirement, 14 per cent of their physicians with less chance of replacing them if current distribution patterns continue.

For the individual physicians, practice in rural areas offers few inducements. Income is generally low and, according to a 1972 AMA study, general practitioners in non-metropolitan counties see more patients per week, charge lower fees and have higher professional expenses than their colleagues in metropolitan areas.

Without special incentives, it can be argued that health care in the hinterlands will continue to deteriorate.

The regionalization plan makes the urban area more appealing because doctors will be working in groups, allowing days off, vacations, association with others in their profession and a social life..Wichita Eagle.

SIGN OF PROGRESS

For some years, medical and scientific authorities have warned that an excess of governmental red tape in the regulation of the prescription drug industry in the United States has been slowing the introduction of important new drugs for medical use. The slowing-down process has deprived Americans of the benefits of certain proved compounds that have been used in Europe for years. The lag in the introduction of such drugs in the U.S., caused by the virtually insurmountable barrier of overregulation, has become an issue that can no longer be swept under the rug. As a result, it appears the rules may be relaxed.

In the words of BARRON'S, National Business and Financial Weekly: "The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is quietly softening its rigid stand against drugs developed abroad; it has published proposed regulations providing for acceptance of foreign research on such products." BARRON'S went on to quote the concern of the FDA "over the loss in the new drug approval process in the U.S. of clinical data from studies performed by experts abroad."

The new rules "will reduce the duplication of effort of clinical investigators; such utilization may also result in useful drugs becoming available to the public at an earlier date.," A spokesman for the prescription drug industry in the United States, the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, commenting on the rule change of the FDA says the action "...could be interpreted as a tacit admission...that the current drug approval process has delayed the introduction in the U.S. of important new drugs marketed abroad, as has been charged."

This seemingly small incident in the esoteric realm of government regulation of scientific endeavors in the health field illustrates all too well the life and death powers that bureaucracy now wields over the lives of private citizens. It is a chilling demonstration of the lengthening shadow of the "big-brother-knows-best" philosophy.

Inside Labor
By Victor Riesel

Significance Overlooked: Court placing union is under Anti-Trust Laws could crunch powerful Labor Blocs

WASHINGTON — There's a tradition on this beat that the more complex the story, the less it's covered and the more significant it is. And that's how it was with last week's ruling of the Supreme Court -- mainly by Dick Nixon's appointees -- against the nation's powerful building and construction trades unions.

Think of it in terms of the big bench deciding to permit contractors to bring malpractice suits against this powerful labor bloc in the courts. See it as giving juries the power to award employers triple damages against the local unions, their leaders and perhaps against their internationals.

And even having the power to send labor chiefs to prison for long terms.

Further, as one top AFL-CIO spokesman said: "This tough Supreme Court decision seems to us to be an open invitation to employers to begin suing unions everywhere even outside the building and construction trades."

The facts of the case on which the high court ruled June 2 are simple. A Texas plumbers and steamfitters local 100 picketed the Connell Construction Co., a general contractor which hires no plumbers or steamfitters. If it wants mechanical work done such as plumbing, pipefitting, electrical tasks, etc., it simply goes out and subcontracts much as a movie producer hires a director, stars, writers, et al.

Then the Connell Co. weaves the project together. Local 100's picketing objective was to force Connell to agree not to subcontract his work to a non-union plumbing firm. Connell signed, protested, went into the lower federal district courts charging anti-trust violations, lost, and finally appealed to the Supreme Court.

There the four Nixon appointees, led by Justice Lewis Powell and joined by Byron White, formed a tight five-judge bloc. They ruled that the plumbers local was guilty of violating the anti-trust laws.

Of course, the permanency of this bloc depends on Justice White. But should William Douglas's health take him from the bench shortly, President Ford can be expected to appoint a man of the juridical philosophy of Dick Nixon's justices. This would guarantee for years a court conservative on economic issues.

This alone has been sufficient to disturb labor's national chiefs and their legal advisers. And they became further agitated as they read, re-read and interpreted the long flow of the majority's language. For until now the building and construction trades, with all their tough practices, have been virtually exempt from subjection to the anti-trust laws. This goes back more than six decades -- to the Clayton, Norris-LaGuardia, Taft-Hartley and Landrum-Griffin Acts.

Until now the worst which could hit the building unions was an adverse decision by their "umbrella," the National Labor Relations Board. Such a decision could cost the union only actual compensatory damages.

(There was one case in 1945 when the New York Electrical Brotherhood local 3 was hit for keeping some mechanical products out of the city but the anti-trust ruling was much narrower than last week's.)

By throwing the building and construction trades unions to juries under anti-trust laws, the high court has opened the labor organizations and their leaders to verdicts which could bankrupt many locals. Should the Teamsters ever become involved and the jury learn that it is dealing with a $200 million labor international, the courts could take quite a chunk of its assets.

At first the other union leaders and legal beagles simply read the decision written by Justice Powell, sighed with a "well, what do you know about that?" attitude. But then they studied the decision closer. It appeared that Justice Powell, with the majority in full agreement, was saying that if a union went beyond bargaining over wages, hours and working conditions it was in the anti-trust ball park.

This could mean that unions haven't the right to negotiate some fringes, or over the shutting of a plant, or its removal, or subcontracting out its work as do the big auto companies.

It certainly means that unions don't have the right to force companies to agree not to use non-union help or hire non-union subcontractors.

This has vast implications. What happens to the union shop in which all must join a union after a stated period or be fired? And can the court's new inclusion of labor under the anti-trust laws be carried into the private industrial sectors such as the auto industry? Or the bankrupt public sector in which there is such inner city turmoil these days?

That's a mighty stormy and historical corner American labor has just turned – or been shoved into by the newly solidly conservative Supreme Court.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: On Government Guests and CIA coverups

By JACK ANDERSON
with
Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — For the comfort and convenience of vacationing bigwigs, the National Park Service maintains rustic chalets at two of the nation's most scenic sites.

Both lodges are closed to the ordinary taxpayers who are obliged to seek public accomodations or pitch their tents.

Only the privileged few are admitted to Brinkerhoff House overlooking Jackson Lake, Wyo., at the foot of the majestic Grant Teton mountains, or to Camp Hoover deep in the forests of Shenandoah National Park.

The National Park Service zealously protects the privacy of the distinguished guests who stay at these idyllic hideaways. But we have obtained copies of the star-studded guest registers from both lodges.

A number of notables, ranging from CBS's Walter Cronkite to Utah's Gov. Cal Rampton, have holed up at fabulous Brinkerhoff House, with its great stone fireplace, stately beamed ceilings and picture windows opening on breathtaking views.

One enthralled guest, Rep. Teno Roncalio, D-Wyo., was moved to write prophetically in the guest registry: "Worth Jack Anderson's Abuse!" Another, Rep. Lee Hamilton, D.-Ind., found both the scenery andthe nominal charges "awe-inspiring and relaxing."

Prominent Washington attorney George V. Allen Jr., referring to the trout that inhabit the cold, clear mountain streams, wrote happily that "Fish creek yielded an 18-inch cutthroat today."

Cronkite, who brought three of his family with him, apparently had the lodge opened especially for him in mid-winter. They spent a five-day Alpine vacation beneath the craggy, snow-capped peaks during the New Year, 1974, holiday. Cronkite left no comments in the registry, but he told us his access to the lodge had been wholly "innocent."

Among the others who signed in at Brinkerhoff House were Reps. B. F. Sisk, D.-Calif., John Jarman, R.-Okla., and Federal Communications Commissioner Rex Lee.

Camp Hoover in the picturesque Shenandoah woodlands was a favorite retreat for White House aides, who sought to get away from the tribulations of the Watergate scandal in 1973 and 1974.

Among those whose names appear on the register are Curtis Herge, who collected illegal contributions for President Nixon; Clay Whitehead, who cracked down on the TV networks for Nixon; H.R. Haldeman's cup bearer, Larry Higby; and Nixon hatchetman Fred Malek.

Two of the good guys of the Watergate days, former Attorney General Elliott Richardson and his sidekick, William Ruckelshaus, also visited the lodge.

Grumped one official about the pampered few who stay at the exclusive hideaways: "They make enough money to scratch for lodgings like the rest of us."

Footnote: The rules supposedly limit the use of the lodges to "Members of Congress and presidential appointees." But in practice, the cronies of the mighty also have wangled VIP keys.

CIA COVERUP: Former CIA chief John McCone now has acknowledged a story he denied to us more than four years ago.

In January, 1971, we reported that the CIA had recruited two underworld figures, Sam Giancana and John Roselli, to plan the assassination of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

We identified their CIA contacts as William Harvey and James "Big Jim" O'Connell. The CIA was put in touch withthe underworld triggermen, we reported, by billionaire Howard Hughes' former Nevada honcho, Robert Maheu.

The plotters are now being hauled behind closed doors of the Select Senate Intelligence Committee to tell what they know.

McCone emerged after three hours of secret testimony to admit cautiously to the press that plots, indeed, had been sanctioned to kill Castro.

This was the opposite of what he told us in 1971. "No plot was authroized or implemented" to assassinate Castro, he told us. We went ahead with the story anyway, and now McCone has acknowledged we were right.

"The plot to knock off Castro," we reported on Jan. 18, 1971, "began as apart of the Bay of Pigs operation. The intent was to eliminate the Cuban dictator before they motley invaders landed on the island. Their arrival was expected to touch off a general uprising, which the Communist militia would have had more trouble putting down without the charismatic Castro to lead them."

Yet even after the Bay of Pigs, we reported, assassination teams continued to try to eliminate Castro until the end of February, 1963. "Nine months later," we noted, "President Kennedy was gunned down in Dallas by Lee Harvey Oswald, a fanatic who previously had agitated for Castro in New Orleans and had made a mysterious trip to the Cuban Embassy in Mexico City."

Among those privy to the CIA conspiracy, there is still a nagging suspicion – unsupported by the Warren Commission's findings -- that Castro became aware of the U.S. plot upon his life and somehow recruited Oswald to retaliate against President Kennedy.

The Senate committee is also investigating this intriguing possibility that the CIA attempts to kill Castro may have backfired against President Kennedy in Dallas.

No less than the late President's brother, Robert, and successor, Lyndon Johnson, were deeply conscious of this unproved possibility.

In a series of trial heats, Harris found Edmund Muskie and Henry Jackson running even with Ford, Hubert Humphrey trailing by two points and Lloyd Bentsen down by nine. Rep. Morris Udall (D.-Ariz.) ran the weakest race, trailing Ford by 17 points.

DOMINOES OR CARDS?

The "domino theory" has been given new credence by the recent events in Southeast Asia. First Cambodia, then South Vietnam. Will Laos and Thailand be the next to fall? Then Burma, Malaysia, South Korea, the Philippines?

According to the theory, there is an inevitability to the process. If one domino is permitted to tumble, the others, standing in line, will collapse in turn.

The theory at least has the virtue of being easily and vividly pictured — and many editorial cartoonists have done just that — and therein may lie its subtle danger.

If an image is what we need, it would be more accurate and useful to admit that what we attempted to prop up in Indochina at such great cost was not a row of solid dominoes but a flimsy house of cards. Its collapse need not have adverse repercussions elsewhere — unless, of course, the other governments we fear will be next are of similarly insubstantial construction.

And that, unfortunately, may be precisely the problem.

GROW YOUR OWN AND SAVE A LOT THIS SUMMER

Willingness to postpone consumption now for tomorrow's national gains is deeply-rooted in most Americans. When war or other national crisis threatens our way of life, we as a people have time and again shown ourselves capable of uniting towards a common goal.

"The victory garden," a family plot of land devoted to home-grown vegetables became a symbol of patriotism during World War II. Today, as Americans fight another war—this one against inflation— "Returning To The Earth" is enjoying popularity.

The early days of Spring are the time for planning and planting your own "inflation garden." It makes sense. You save money; enjoy fresher and tastier vegetables; and receive regular, moderate amounts of fresh air and exercise. Gardening provides an inexpensive means of recreation for the whole family.

You needn't start big. Experts tell us even a small 10' by 25' plot can produce a lot, depending upon your own ambition. You probably will need professional advice on what crops grow best in your local climate and soil. The right tools are also essential, and if you plan to can part of your crop, study proper procedures beforehand.

By following these simple steps, you and your family can reap the reward of good eating throughout summer and into next winter—aiding our economy besides!

DILEMMA RESOLVED

The directors of London's exclusive male-only Carlton Club had a tough decision to make. Since its founding in 1832 the club had admitted women only if accompanied by a member—and even then only to an annex dining room.

Dilemma: What to do about Margaret Thatcher, whose position as leader of the Conservative Party made it deucedly awkward to exclude her? Solution: She was made an honorary member, and seated at the head of the main dining room. There's hope for the British if they can cut through Gordian knots so handily.—The Daily Dunklin Democrat, Kennett, Mo.

A DESTRUCTIVE COURSE

Deeply imbedded in the American character is the concept that all competition is good. But arbitrarily-induced competition affecting a regulated public utility can set the stage for deterioration of service and high costs for the majority of consumers. This is hardly a result that could be described as being in the public interest. Such competition is precisely what some, including Federal Communications Commission regulatory authorities, prescribe for the U.S. telecommunications system.

The problem is that if customers are allowed greater freedom to connect their own telephone equipment directly to the nationwide network, experience has shown that high standards of service will be impaired as telephone carriers

The problem is that if customers are allowed greater freedom to connect their own telephone equipment directly to the nationwide network, experience has shown that high standards of service will be impaired as telephone company controls of equipmer' quality and maintenance is weakened.

If more and more carriers providing special communication services are permitted to take over from regulated telephone companies many of their most profitable business customers, the end result will be increasingly higher rates for tens of millions of average small business and residential telephone users. For most of us, this adds up to higher costs for poorer service.

The nation's telephone companies are bound to provide service to all who want it at the most reasonable rates possible. They have total end-to-end responsibility for service and system performance. Value of service pricing in which higher charges to business for special services allow lower charges to residential customers, has built universal service. Many other nations have been down the road of interconnection ofcustomer-provided equipment and experienced its unsatisfactory consequences.

Only a few would benefit from contrived and distorted competition in the U.S. telephone industry. The majority of people would suffer as the traditional objective of serving the common good under public regulation fell by the wayside in a rising competitive scramble for the most lucrative parts of the telecommunications business. The U.S. telephone system is an invaluable national resource. To disrupt and undermine it for transitory, short-run advantage would be a regulatory mistake of unforgivable proportions.

DOCTORS FOR RURAL AREAS

Only 37 per cent of Kansas' physicians practice in the rural sections of the state.

Fortunately, this inadequacy may be repaired by a regionalization plan being refined at the University of Kansas School of Medicine.

In oversimplified terms, the plan would:

Designate as primary care centers about 60 towns with populations of 2,000-3,000 where several family doctors would serve in group practice in a small hospital.

Twelve towns of more than 10,000 would be designated secondary care centers where larger groups of doctors, including some specialists, would practice in larger hospitals.

Major care centers in Witchita Kansas City and perhaps eventually Topeka would be utilized for patients with serious problems.

Transportation systems would be organized and operated by communities to get people who have no personal means of transportation to the centers.

The American Medical Association, in an understatement, has recognized such rural areas as "medically deprived." In Washington, D.C. there is one doctor for every 140 persons. But in Southwestern New Mexico, only three physicians care for 95,000 inhabitants.

In addition to the deficit of physicians in Kansas, there is the matter of geographic distribution. This problem, which has become more acute during the past 20 years, is particularly evident in the rural areas.

Ninety-nine counties fall short of the national physician ratio, having less than one physician for 629 persons.

Only six counties exceed this ratio.

Data from the Kansas Regional Medical Program show two well-recognized problems with physician distribution in the state--a proportionately large concentration of physicians in urban areas and an aged physician population in rural areas.

These factors will be increasingly important in the state's rural areas since they can expect to lose, through death or retirement, 14 per cent of their physicians with less chance of replacing them if current distribution patterns continue.

For the individual physicians, practice in rural areas offers few inducements. Income is generally low and, according to a 1972 AMA study, general practitioners in non-metropolitan counties see more patients per week, charge lower fees and have higher professional expenses than their colleagues in metropolitan areas.

Without special incentives, it can be argued that health care in the hinterlands will continue to deteriorate.

The regionalization plan makes the urban area more appealing because doctors will be working in groups, allowing days off, vacations, association with others in their profession and a social life..Wichita Eagle.

SIGN OF PROGRESS

For some years, medical and scientific authorities have warned that an excess of governmental red tape in the regulation of the prescription drug industry in the United States has been slowing the introduction of important new drugs for medical use. The slowing-down process has deprived Americans of the benefits of certain proved compounds that have been used in Europe for years. The lag in the introduction of such drugs in the U.S., caused by the virtually insurmountable barrier of overregulation, has become an issue that can no longer be swept under the rug. As a result, it appears the rules may be relaxed.

In the words of BARRON'S, National Business and Financial Weekly: "The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is quietly softening its rigid stand against drugs developed abroad; it has published proposed regulations providing for acceptance of foreign research on such products." BARRON'S went on to quote the concern of the FDA "over the loss in the new drug approval process in the U.S. of clinical data from studies performed by experts abroad."

The new rules "will reduce the duplication of effort of clinical investigators; such utilization may also result in useful drugs becoming available to the public at an earlier date.," A spokesman for the prescription drug industry in the United States, the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, commenting on the rule change of the FDA says the action "...could be interpreted as a tacit admission...that the current drug approval process has delayed the introduction in the U.S. of important new drugs marketed abroad, as has been charged."

This seemingly small incident in the esoteric realm of government regulation of scientific endeavors in the health field illustrates all too well the life and death powers that bureaucracy now wields over the lives of private citizens. It is a chilling demonstration of the lengthening shadow of the "big-brother-knows-best" philosophy.

Inside Labor
By Victor Riesel

Significance Overlooked: Court placing union is under Anti-Trust Laws could crunch powerful Labor Blocs

WASHINGTON — There's a tradition on this beat that the more complex the story, the less it's covered and the more significant it is. And that's how it was with last week's ruling of the Supreme Court -- mainly by Dick Nixon's appointees -- against the nation's powerful building and construction trades unions.

Think of it in terms of the big bench deciding to permit contractors to bring malpractice suits against this powerful labor bloc in the courts. See it as giving juries the power to award employers triple damages against the local unions, their leaders and perhaps against their internationals.

And even having the power to send labor chiefs to prison for long terms.

Further, as one top AFL-CIO spokesman said: "This tough Supreme Court decision seems to us to be an open invitation to employers to begin suing unions everywhere even outside the building and construction trades."

The facts of the case on which the high court ruled June 2 are simple. A Texas plumbers and steamfitters local 100 picketed the Connell Construction Co., a general contractor which hires no plumbers or steamfitters. If it wants mechanical work done such as plumbing, pipefitting, electrical tasks, etc., it simply goes out and subcontracts much as a movie producer hires a director, stars, writers, et al.

Then the Connell Co. weaves the project together. Local 100's picketing objective was to force Connell to agree not to subcontract his work to a non-union plumbing firm. Connell signed, protested, went into the lower federal district courts charging anti-trust violations, lost, and finally appealed to the Supreme Court.

There the four Nixon appointees, led by Justice Lewis Powell and joined by Byron White, formed a tight five-judge bloc. They ruled that the plumbers local was guilty of violating the anti-trust laws.

Of course, the permanency of this bloc depends on Justice White. But should William Douglas's health take him from the bench shortly, President Ford can be expected to appoint a man of the juridical philosophy of Dick Nixon's justices. This would guarantee for years a court conservative on economic issues.

This alone has been sufficient to disturb labor's national chiefs and their legal advisers. And they became further agitated as they read, re-read and interpreted the long flow of the majority's language. For until now the building and construction trades, with all their tough practices, have been virtually exempt from subjection to the anti-trust laws. This goes back more than six decades -- to the Clayton, Norris-LaGuardia, Taft-Hartey and Landrum-Griffin Acts.

Until now the worst which could hit the building unions was an adverse decision by their "umbrella," the National Labor Relations Board. Such a decision could cost the union only actual compensatory damages.

(There was one case in 1945 when the New York Electrical Brotherhood local 3 was hit for keeping some mechanical products out of the city but the anti-trust ruling was much narrower than last week's.)

By throwing the building and construction trades unions to juries under anti-trust laws, the high court has opened the labor organizations and their leaders to verdicts which could bankrupt many locals. Should the Teamsters ever become involved and the jury learn that it is dealing with a $200 million labor international, the courts could take quite a chunk of its assets.

At first the other union leaders and legal beagles simply read the decision written by Justice Powell, sighed with a "well, what do you know about that?" attitude. But then they studied the decision closer. It appeared that Justice Powell, with the majority in full agreement, was saying that if a union went beyond bargaining over wages, hours and working conditions it was in the anti-trust ball park.

This could mean that unions haven't the right to negotiate some fringes, or over the shutting of a plant, or its removal, or subcontracting out its work as do the big auto companies.

It certainly means that unions don't have the right to force companies to agree not to use non-union help or hire non-union subcontractors.

This has vast implications. What happens to the union shop in which all must join a union after a stated period or be fired? And can the court's new inclusion of labor under the anti-trust laws be carried into the private industrial sectors such as the auto industry? Or the bankrupt public sector in which there is such inner city turmoil these days?

That's a mighty stormy and historical corner American labor has just turned – or been shoved into by the newly solidly conservative Supreme Court.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: On Government Guests and CIA coverups

By JACK ANDERSON
with
Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — For the comfort and convenience of vacationing bigwigs, the National Park Service maintains rustic chalets at two of the nation's most scenic sites.

Both lodges are closed to the ordinary taxpayers who are obliged to seek public accomodations or pitch their tents.

Only the privileged few are admitted to Brinkerhoff House overlooking Jackson Lake, Wyo., at the foot of the majestic Grant Teton mountains, or to Camp Hoover deep in the forests of Shenandoah National Park.

The National Park Service zealously protects the privacy of the distinguished guests who stay at these idyllic hideaways. But we have obtained copies of the star-studded guest registers from both lodges.

A number of notables, ranging from CBS's Walter Cronkite to Utah's Gov. Cal Rampton, have holed up at fabulous Brinkerhoff House, with its great stone fireplace, stately beamed ceilings and picture windows opening on breathtaking views.

One enthralled guest, Rep. Teno Roncalio, D-Wyo., was moved to write prophetically in the guest registry: "Worth Jack Anderson's Abuse!" Another, Rep. Lee Hamilton, D.-Ind., found both the scenery andthe nominal charges "awe-inspiring and relaxing."

Prominent Washington attorney George V. Allen Jr., referring to the trout that inhabit the cold, clear mountain streams, wrote happily that "Fish creek yielded an 18-inch cutthroat today."

Cronkite, who brought three of his family with him, apparently had the lodge opened especially for him in mid-winter. They spent a five-day Alpine vacation beneath the craggy, snow-capped peaks during the New Year, 1974, holiday. Cronkite left no comments in the registry, but he told us his access to the lodge had been wholly "innocent."

Among the others who signed in at Brinkerhoff House were Reps. B. F. Sisk, D.-Calif., John Jarman, R.-Okla., and Federal Communications Commissioner Rex Lee.

Camp Hoover in the picturesque Shenandoah woodlands was a favorite retreat for White House aides, who sought to get away from the tribulations of the Watergate scandal in 1973 and 1974.

Among those whose names appear on the register are Curtis Herge, who collected illegal contributions for President Nixon; Clay Whitehead, who cracked down on the TV networks for Nixon; H.R. Haldeman's cup bearer, Larry Higby; and Nixon hatchetman Fred Malek.

Two of the good guys of the Watergate days, former Attorney General Elliott Richardson and his sidekick, William Ruckelshaus, also visited the lodge.

Grumped one official about the pampered few who stay at the exclusive hideaways: "They make enough money to scratch for lodgings like the rest of us."

Footnote: The rules supposedly limit the use of the lodges to "Members of Congress and presidential appointees." But in practice, the cronies of the mighty also have wangled VIP keys.

CIA COVERUP: Former CIA chief John McCone now has acknowledged a story he denied to us more than four years ago.

In January, 1971, we reported that the CIA had recruited two underworld figures, Sam Giancana and John Roselli, to plan the assassination of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

We identified their CIA contacts as William Harvey and James "Big Jim" O'Connell. The CIA was put in touch withthe underworld triggermen, we reported, by billionaire Howard Hughes' former Nevada honcho, Robert Maheu.

The plotters are now being hauled behind closed doors of the Select Senate Intelligence Committee to tell what they know.

McCone emerged after three hours of secret testimony to admit cautiously to the press that plots, indeed, had been sanctioned to kill Castro.

This was the opposite of what he told us in 1971. "No plot was authroized or implemented" to assassinate Castro, he told us. We went ahead with the story anyway, and now McCone has acknowledged we were right.

"The plot to knock off Castro," we reported on Jan. 18, 1971, "began as apart of the Bay of Pigs operation. The intent was to eliminate the Cuban dictator before they motley invaders landed on the island. Their arrival was expected to touch off a general uprising, which the Communist militia would have had more trouble putting down without the charismatic Castro to lead them."

Yet even after the Bay of Pigs, we reported, assassination teams continued to try to eliminate Castro until the end of February, 1963. "Nine months later," we noted, "President Kennedy was gunned down in Dallas by Lee Harvey Oswald, a fanatic who previously had agitated for Castro in New Orleans and had made a mysterious trip to the Cuban Embassy in Mexico City."

Among those privy to the CIA conspiracy, there is still a nagging suspicion – unsupported by the Warren Commission's findings -- that Castro became aware of the U.S. plot upon his life and somehow recruited Oswald to retaliate against President Kennedy.

The Senate committee is also investigating this intriguing possibility that the CIA attempts to kill Castro may have backfired against President Kennedy in Dallas.

No less than the late President's brother, Robert, and successor, Lyndon Johnson, were deeply conscious of this unproved possibility.

What's the law?

The case of the invisible-garb lady

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Norma showed a lot of style and, normally, her style showed a lot of her. But one dark night, according to George, there was nothing to be seen of her at all. Dressed from top to bottom in Edgar Allen Poe black, she was crossing the street when George struck her with his automobile.

Landing in the hospital, Norma sued George for her injuries.

"A pedestrian," she told the judge, "should be seen and not hurt."

"I agree," was George's answer. "But, for all intents and purposes, when I hit Norma she was invisible. The night was black and she was wearing black. If anything, she was the one at fault. Wearing black on a black night was pure carelessness. She's just lucky she's not wearing wings."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit George's invisible lady to collect for her injuries?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that, as a matter of law, a woman cannot be deemed careless for choosing to wear a particular color when going out. For a woman to wear black on a black night, concluded the judge, is not carelessness.

(Based upon a 1955 California District Court of Appeals Decision)

The case of the invisible-garb lady

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Norma showed a lot of style and, normally, her style showed a lot of her. But one dark night, according to George, there was nothing to be seen of her at all. Dressed from top to bottom in Edgar Allen Poe black, she was crossing the street when George struck her with his automobile.

Landing in the hospital, Norma sued George for her injuries.

"A pedestrian," she told the judge, "should be seen and not hurt."

"I agree," was George's answer. "But, for all intents and purposes, when I hit Norma she was invisible. The night was black and she was wearing black. If anything, she was the one at fault. Wearing black on a black night was pure carelessness. She's just lucky she's not wearing wings."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit George's invisible lady to collect for her injuries?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that, as a matter of law, a woman cannot be deemed careless for choosing to wear a particular color when going out. For a woman to wear black on a black night, concluded the judge, is not carelessness.

Youth-education minister joins First Baptist staff

Mark E. Tappmeyer has joined the staff at First Baptist Church, 1101 N. Main St., as minister of youth and education.

Prior to assuming his duties at First Baptist last weekend, Tappmeyer had been employed as an admissions counselor at Southwest Baptist College in Bolivar since his graduation there a year and a half ago.

Although a native of Springfield an former resident of Rolla, Tappmeyer is no stranger to his new surroundings, having spent the summer of 1973 in Sikeston as a summer youth worker at First Baptist. He has since returned for other speaking engagements at the church.

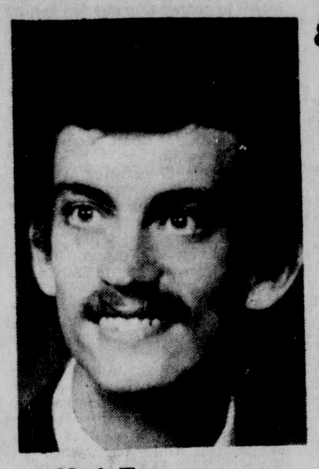
His primary duties in his new job at First Baptist will be to organize and develop a youth program for all age levels and direct the overall educational program of the church. He sums up his main objectives simply as "teaching and making disciples."

He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. W. P. Tappmeyer of Rolla, where he graduated from high school and where his father is employed as a chemistry professor at University of Missouri-Rolla.

At Southwest Baptist College, where his father formerly taught, Tappmeyer graduated with a major in English and minor in philosophy.

While in school in the Bolivar campus, he was active in the Baptist Student Union and English Club and as a member of weekend revival teams which conducted services in churches throughout the area.

During the summer and fall of 1971, he spent six months in Europe as a member of an evangelistic: mission team composed of seven college students.



Mark Tappmeyer

While on the tour the group visited England, Gemany, Switzerland, Spain, France and Austria, ministering primarily to American military personnel in bases around the European continent. However, they worked some with local people in churches and schools as well.

Tappmeyer's main role with the team was as a speaker, and while on the tour he spoke in formal worship services, as well as in rap sessions, high school assemblies and other youth gatherings.

Although he lays no claim to musical talent, Tappmeyer says the team also formed a singing group that did a lot of "singing in mess halls,' as well as being a regular part of their tour programs.

After returning to Southwest Baptist for the spring semester, he spent the summer of 1972 as a summer youth worker at First Baptist Church in Festus.

Tappmeyer, who is single, lists hunting, fishing, tennis, photography and reading as his favorite hobbies.

In his first Sunday on the job last Sunay, Tappmeyer filled the pulpit in both the morning and evening services in the ab- of the Rev. Clyde Riddle, pastor, who attended the Southern Baptist Convention this week in Miami Beach, Fla., and will do so again this Sunday in the 10:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. services.

Interlinking world system objective of Baha'i faith gaining wider acceptance

NEW YORK (AP) "The earth is but one country, and mankind its citizens."

That planetary interdependence has become a common theme nowadays and it's a central credo of a religion begun in Iran 130 years ago and which now reaches into many countries—the Baha'i faith.

Its ideal of international government "is becoming more and more accepted," says Dr. Dorothy W. Nelson, dean of the University of Southern California law school and an officer of the National Spiritual Assembly of Baha'is in the U.S.

As the first American woman to head a major law school, Dr. Nelson says the discipline of law and justice themselves point to the present need of an interlinked world system.

"Inevitably we are moving toward it," she said in an interview. "It won't be brought about only by Baha'is. The plan is of God."

She said that with the swelling interconnections of the globe's communications, transportation, scientific advances, commerce and economy, and with its common fate subjected to its military potentialities, "People are realizing increasingly that only through sharing will we be able to feed the world and solve the problems of the international economy. Once we recognize we are one world, we can forget tariffs, forget boycotts.

"There would be enough food to feed the world if we just let those countries produce what they can produce best instead of competing to become independent and self-sufficient. Some kind of working international structure is the way to bring about world peace and the happiness of mankind."

This vision of a cooperative world commonwealth was held up in the middle of the last century by the Baha'i founder, Baha'u'llah, an Iranian teacher whose voluminous writings are regarded by followers as revelations from God.

"Oneness of humanity, oneness of religion, oneness of God," goes a key saying.

The unitary goals stress equal rights and worth of male and female, equality of races, an end to nationalistic prejudices, the basic harmony of religion and science, universal education and equal justice for all.

Baha'u'llah, is considered the "manifestation of God" for this age, the latest of such manifestations in a long line of "progressive revelation," including Abraham, Moses, Krishna, Buddha, Zoroaster, Jesus and Mohammed.

Although the group issues no statistics, estimates are that Baha'is now total 4 million in 320 countries of Europe, Asia, Africa and America, including 70,000 in 1,000 local spiritual assemblies in this country.

Its national offices are at Wilmette, Ill., site of one of five typically nine-sided houses of worship around the world. Its top governing body is an elected, nine-member International House of Justice, in Haifa, Israel.

Q: Mr. Swaim, I find it very difficult to get along with my business associates. I really have tried but it seems like I always end up losing my temper and saying things I should not.

A: Millions of people are frustrated in this day of extreme tensions and keen competition. We get so involved in our work that it often becomes our life and we can't really see the forest for the trees. You may be trying too hard, putting yourself under more pressure than you can stand. Try loosening up and recognizing that if you don't function at one hundred percent of your business capacity all of the time it isn't any real loss.

Christianity is not just an antidote or therapy for mending relationships. It is a way of life that can help each of us experience greater happiness here and prepare for the hereafter. Many people use Christianity as a tool to unlock one door or another, but Christian faith is more than a means to an end, it is an end in itself. It is a complete release from an old way of life and a new life that gives broader dimensions to every aspect of life.

Growing old with grace AND faith

By David Poling

"It seems that no one wants to die but neither does one want to grow old. But to live is to grow old. The question is how to do it graciously, creatively, and meaningfully. . . How do I become a nice old man?"

—Richard Knox Smith

Western society has finally admitted that the whole world is getting older. Western culture, especially North America has been on a youth binge for half a century. In the United States, Madison Avenue has been selling the youth image from clothes to cosmetics, from entertainment to evening wear. Age was evil. Middle-age was pre-death. Retirement was viewed as a concentration camp with a suntan. If you were getting older, the youth merchants told you to get out.

But now this has changed. Nobody can point to the exact month or year but a powerful new force is in operation and reaching into the imperial rule of YOUTH. To pick a time and place I would say that it was the March issue of Esquire which had a major article on how to grow old with style and grace. This clever yet profound article said simply: act your age, dress your age, enjoy your age. Sneer at the facelifts. Maturity has to be earned and only when youth is gone can this be fully achieved.

Everywhere we see conferences on aging, articles on retirement, columns on growing older. Within the religious community there is lively interest and attention to this theme, most vividly seen in the new book "Forty-Nine and Holding" (Morgan Pub.)

Richard Knox Smith started working on this volume when he was 49. Here he blends the personal adventures of being husband, father and friend well into middle-age and how he discovered new opportunities in life and new dimensions to his faith. He argues that, "Personal growth and renewal can reclaim middle-age. . . Middle age is a period for new ventures. We ought to have enough self-confidence and courage to experiment. Don't allow some amusement on the part of friends to deter your harmonica lessons or your aspirations to be a writer or the idea of getting your Master's Degree. . ."

Smith aims his fire at the thousands of middle-aged clergymen who may be at a professional sag point or a clerical plateau. Yet so much that he proposes is fit for all readers who may be 49 and holding or 50 and fading! Much of his style and frankness reminds me of the faith-optimism that flows through the works of Keith Miller: that in spite of our foolishness, sin, and despair, God prefers to work miracles of change and joy.

One of the profound insights of this book is the author's conclusion that God loves the future. And as we approach 49 or 50, we should not and must not hold back. Faith calls us just as forcefully to the "ahead" and assures us by what has happened in the past.

No. 191. Rebuilding the Temple

During the first year of the reign of King Cyrus of Persia, the prophecy made by Jeremiah was fulfilled because the Lord stirred the king to send this proclamation throughout the empire:

"...The Lord God of heaven hath given me all the kingdoms of the earth; and he hath charged me to build him an house at Jerusalem, which is in Judah. Who is there among you of all his people? his God be with him, and let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judah, and build the house of the Lord God of Israel (he is the God,) which is in Jerusalem. And whosoever remaineth in any place where he sojourneth, let the men of his place help him with silver, and with gold, and with goods, and with beasts, beside the freewill offering for the house of God that is in Jerusalem." (Ezra 1:2-4)

The Temple was finally completed in the sixth year of the reign of King Darius, and was dedicated with great joy by the priests, the Levites, and all the people. Then the priests and Levites were divided to do the work of God as instructed in the laws of Moses.

Youth-education minister joins First Baptist staff

Mark E. Tappmeyer has joined the staff at First Baptist Church, 1101 N. Main St., as minister of youth and education.

Prior to assuming his duties at First Baptist last weekend, Tappmeyer had been employed as an admissions counselor at Southwest Baptist College in Bolivar since his graduation there a year and a half ago.

Although a native of Springfield an former resident of Rolla, Tappmeyer is no stranger to his new surroundings, having spent the summer of 1973 in Sikeston as a summer youth worker at First Baptist. He has since returned for other speaking engagements at the church.

His primary duties in his new job at First Baptist will be to organize and develop a youth program for all age levels and direct the overall educational program of the church. He sums up his main objectives simply as "teaching and making disciples."

He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. W. P. Tappmeyer of Rolla, where he graduated from high school and where his father is employed as a chemistry professor at University of Missouri-Rolla.

At Southwest Baptist College, where his father formerly taught, Tappmeyer graduated with a major in English and minor in philosophy.

"...The Lord God of heaven hath given me all the kingdoms of the earth; and he hath charged me to build him an house at Jerusalem, which is in Judah. Who is there among you of all his people? his God be with him, and let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judah, and build the house of the Lord God of Israel (he is the God,) which is in Jerusalem. And whosoever remaineth in any place where he sojourneth, let the men of his place help him with silver, and with gold, and with goods, and with beasts, beside the freewill offering for the house of God that is in Jerusalem." (Ezra 1:2-4)

The Temple was finally completed in the sixth year of the reign of King Darius, and was dedicated with great joy by the priests, the Levites, and all the people. Then the priests and Levites were divided to do the work of God as instructed in the laws of Moses.

Thoughts
From The Living Bible

When they arrived at the place where God had told Abraham to go, he built an altar and placed the wood in order, ready for the fire, and then tied Isaac and laid him on the altar over the wood. And Abraham took the knife and lifted it up to plunge it into his son, to slay him. At that moment the Angel of God shouted to him from heaven, "Abraham! Abraham!" "Yes, Lord!" he answered. "Lay down the knife; don't hurt the lad in any way."

Ann Landers

The 55-year-old itch

Dear Ann Landers: Last night I almost died of shock. I was cleaning out the storeroom and came across a box of letters. It seems my husband has a heavy correspondence going with Lonely-Hearts Club Members and teen-age Pen Pals! He has been responding also to ads placed by homosexuals and couples interested in 'Swinging."

Not only did I find letters he has received but the carbon copies of letters he has writeen. Pictures were attached to some of the letters and the writers thanked him for his picture. One woman said, "You are very handsome." (I wonder whose picture he sent.)

I am very shaken up by this and don't know what to do. My husband is 55 years old. He has never cheated on me that I know of. We've been married 33 years and have a fine family. What does this mean? Shall I confront him with the evidence? Please advise. I am -- Worried Sick

Dear W.S.: By all means confront him with the evidence. Since he's always been well-behaved I suspect he is having some little flights into fantasy. Suggest counseling -- and go with him to find out why he needs this sort of thing.

Dear Ann Landers..: Last Saturday my seven-year-old daughter had a play-date with a little friend. Lisa was expecting Maureen for lunch and they were to spend the day together. That very morning Maureen's mother phoned to say her child would rather stay home and watch Sesame Street. I knew Lisa would be disappointed and suggested they watch Sesame Street at our house. Maureen's mother said her child decided she just didn't want to come over and added, "I'm not going to force her."

Lisa was very unhappy and I was burned up. I believe when a child makes a date it should be kept -- unless the youngster becomes ill. Some mothers don't agree with me. They feel a child should be free to change his mind and make his own decisions regarding friends. What do YOU think? -- Fuming In Florida

Dear Fuming: Once a child makes a date, it is a commitment. A last-minute change in mood doesn't qualify as a legitimate reason to dssappoint a friend.

Lisa's mother should have insisted that her child go -- with the understanding that if she didn't want to accept future invitations she didn't have to, but once having said "yes" she was obligated.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I can no longer communicate on this subject. Too many feelings get in the way. Here's the problem.

Bill and Mr. X have been friends since boyhood. In the last few years the friend has become a big wheel in illegal drug traffic. I've been trying to get Bill to stop seeing him. In fact, I'm ill at ease with him and his wife and no longer want to entertain them in our home.

Bill insists that what Mr. X does is no concern of his and he refuses to drop them. This bone of contention is making me ill. What can I do to get Bill to see things my way? Your advice is desperately needed. – H.U.R.T.

Dear H.: Bill will undoubtedly continue to see his boyhood chum no matter what I say, but this I can tell you. If Mr. Dope Dealer is nailed while in the presence of your husband, his name will be in the papers and the mud will stick for a long time to come.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers's booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. Beautiful you

Beauty on the go for working gals

By MARTI ROBINSON

Perhaps you're gaining success through hard work, talent and brains. Nevertheless, I haven't met a successful professional woman who's given up the desire to look good just because she's made it. Certainly, quite the opposite.

If your busy schedule often takes you through a working day on to a social evening without the chance to get home to freshen up and change, I've a few suggestions that might promote you again — in the beauty area.

The kind of face make-up you've worn all day usually won't be suitable to use for an evening. You may be somewhat subdued in your lipstick, blushers and eye shadow shades during the day. But for evening wear you need more intense color, so you won't "fade away" or look washed out when you're in dimly lighted rooms in stead of a brightly lit office. A pair of extra lashes will add a touch of glamour.

Many dresses perfectly suited to a day at the office can be transformed for evening wear with a change of accessories. A bold choice of earrings, strands of glitter beads, a belt of gold or silver links to replace the one that matches your dress, delicate- looking strappy shoes, a colorful silk scarf tied round the hip — any of these will brighten your outfit and your feelings.

Color is important any time of the day, and you needn't choose basic black after five. A favorite color of men is blue. But choose colors best for you. Use your underlying skin tone as a basis to guide you in color choices. Why not go to a new boutique and try on dresses for a new approach? You may discover you look smashing in corals and oranges you've never tried before — and you can work all day and leave the office for play in colors that appeal to your senses, and to people around you.

If you simply haven't had the chance to get to a beauty parlor, wear a hat. Hats and turbans can be dramatic while hiding the fact that your hair-do has lots its bounce.

Good-looking, well-fitting pants outfits are permanently popular with many career women. But if you don't want to continue the day into evening wearing pants, plan your wardrobe so that a skirt can substitute for the pants, while the top bouse and jacket are still compatible.

Obviously, keeping two sets of make-up in your office is the most practical thing a professional woman can do. Cleansing the skin thoroughly before redoing your make-up is essential to safeguard your complexion; so a cleansing cream is a must in your beauty kit. Applying the cream and gently tissuing it off takes only minutes and will leave the skin feeling moist and fresh, ready for the new set of make-up that will follow.

I have found a great evening beauty enhancer to be a liquid gleamer, for it highlights the complexion with a delicate iridescence. It can go over your foundation or powder and add special shimmery effects.

It's true that redoing your makeup before leaving the office — not to mention the freshening up your face should have at lunch time — takes time. But we all find time to do the things we really want to do, no matter how busy we are.

In addition, with daily efforts at the art of application, we should be able to make ourselves up in fifteen minutes. Practice. You'll see.

Dear Mrs. Robinson:

Sometimes when I just don't have the time to wash my hair I use a powdered dry shampoo. Is my girl friend right in saying this is harmful to my hair?

J.K.

Dear J.K.:

While I believe such a product can be used to freshen up lank or oily hair, and I've never heard that dry shampoo is harmful to healthy hair, it should not be relied on too often. Too many "dry shampoos" can actually create flaking that looks like dandruff. A real shampooing is the best way to keep your hair at its prettiest.

Reds rule Cardinals

CINCINNATI (AP) — Gary Nolan treads softly when talk of a 20-victory season arises, but not Joe Morgan.

"Before the season started, I figured him for 15 victories if he could pitch without pain. Now I figure him for 20," said Morgan.

The Cincinnati Reds' feisty second baseman provided a two-run pinch single Thursday night, setting the stage for a two-run double by Nolan to key a seven-run inning against St. Louis.

The Reds won 10-1 as Nolan notched his sixth straight victory. It was his seventh victory against three losses.

"He should be unbeaten. We didn't give him any runs early in the year," said Morgan, who missed two games with an injured shoulder.

Nolan remains tight-lipped about any 1975 goals. "I just want to go out every fifth day and keep us in the ballgame. That's my only goal."

Nolan permitted only three hits in six innings before leaving with a 10-0 lead.

Morgan says the 27-year-old righthander is nearing his 1972 form when he was 12-3 at the All-Star break.

"I still don't think he's near his peak," said Morgan. "But he's 98 per cent there."

Nolan, in recording his first victory over St. Louis since 1970, says his biggest problem is inability to recall the strengths and weaknesses of the individual hitters.

"Johnny Bench has been a big help," said Nolan, who broke into baseball in 1967 with Bench as his 19-year-old battery mate.

The victory was Cincinnati's 18th in the last 23 games. The Reds, who won six games during their eight-game homestand, have won 24 of 31 at Riverfront Stadium.

The losing pitcher was Lynn McGlothen, 6-5, who departed trailing 3 0. The Reds erupted in the sixth off Ron Bryant, who was making his first appearance since retiring during spring training. A 24-game winner in 1973, Bryant was roughed up for three quick runs and Ryan Kurosaki was victimized for four more in one third of an inning.

Brock trails star balloting

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Bench is among four Cincinnati Reds dominating the early balloting for the National League All-Star team, released Friday by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office.

Bench, who has been on the NL team the last seven years and started the last six, has a huge lead for the catching spot — 327,894 votes to 60,713 for runner-up Manny Sanguillen of Pittsburgh.

The other Reds topping early returns are Joe Morgan at second base, Dave Concepcion at shortstop and Pete Rose in the outfield.

Morgan has drawn 249,174 votes thus far, nearly five times as many as Pittsburgh's Rennie Stennett, presently second in the tally with 55,778.

Concepcion, seeking his first starting role, has attracted 182,836 votes, followed by Larry Bowa of Philadelphia with 136,121. Rose has 215,612 in the outfielder's race, followed close behind by the Mets' Rusty Staub with 151,322 and Del Unser with 147,583. Neither Staub nor Unser have started previously, though Staub was a reserve five consecutive times (1967-71) and played in three games.

Base-stealing ace Lou Brock of St. Louis is also an outfield contender with 108,086 votes, as is Los Angeles' Jimmy Wynn with 98,347.

Two Los Angeles Dodgers have an early advantage in the infield. The Dodgers leaders are first baseman Steve Garvey, a write-in selection in 1974 who ended up most valuable player in the midseason classic, with 191,197 ballots and third baseman Ron Cey with 203,815.

New York's Mike Phillips has drawn the most votes of any write-in candidate this year, polling 28,489 to place him No. 5 among shortstops.

Current American League leaders include second baseman Ron Carew of Minnesota and outfielder-designated hitter Hank Aaron of Milwaukee, both of whom have been chosen as starters every year since fan balloting began in 1970. Other AL leaders, announced last Monday, are Yankee catcher Thurman Munson, first baseman George Scott of Milwaukee, third baseman Aurelio Rodriguez of Detroit, shortstop Bert Campaneris of Oakland and A's outfielders Reggie Jackson and Joe Rudi.

Pitchers and the remainder of the squad will be chosen by the All-Star coaches.

Arnold leads Dollar sales

The Sikeston Little League, Junior Babe Ruth and Senior Babe Ruth fund-raising program is finishing to check presentation June 19th, from its sponsor — Sikeston's Burger King Restaurant.

Ron Kreup, Sales Director for Drury Industries, franchisee of Sikeston's Burger King Restaurant, announced today that the Little League Division had turned in nearly $7,000.00 of "Have It Your Way" Delicious Dollar sales as of June 10th. This will mean a donation of nearly $3,500.00 to the Little League alone.

The fund-raising program included several incentive programs for the boys to sell the Delicious Dollars. Mike Foster, Little League Commissioner, along with Ron Kruep, announced the incentive winners today:

1) Grand Prize — The two teams selling the most Delicious Dollars won an all expense paid trip to see the St. Louis Cardinals vs. Houston Astros this Sunday, June 15. The winners are:

1st — Manager Jim Alford's "Malone & Hyde" Little League Team with 567 Delicious Dollar Sales

2nd — Manager Steve Weatherford's "Bank of Sikeston" Little League Team with 513 Delicious Dollar sales

2) Three Second Prizes — a $25.00 Gift Certificate good at the sporting goods store of the boys choice in each division for the boys selling the most Delicious Dollars. The winners are:

(A) Mike Arnold, Little League "Bridgers" with 200
(B) Ed Wason,Jr. Babe Ruth "Eagles" with 89
(C) Gary Silverthrone, Sr. Babe Ruth "Elks" with 75

3) Third Prizes — Nearly 24 boys were presented a free dinner on Burger King (Whopper, fries, and Coke) for selling a minimum of 25 Delicious Dollars.

In addition to the scheduled prizes, Mike Arnold of the "Bridger" team was invited to attend the St. Louis Cardinal game due to his outstanding effort.

If anyone is interested in seeing the kids off to the ballgame Sunday, June 15, Ron Kruep announced that the bus would leave Sikeston's Burger King Restaurant at 9:00 AM SHARP.

ABA makes rule changes

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave DeBusschere obviously is finding his new job as American Basketball Association commissioner very difficult.

"I would rather be playing," DeBusschere, a former National Basketball Association All Star, said Thursday at his first news conference since replacing Tedd Munchak as commissioner on May 15.

The 34-year-old DeBusschere, the youngest commissioner in the history of pro basketball, showed his unfamiliarity with the position and his nervousness by continually flipping and spinning an ABA ball during his brief encounter with the media.

"There are some very difficult decisions to make," admitted DeBusschere, "but that's par for the course, just as there were when I was a trustee."

DeBusschere prepped for the commissioner's job by serving one season as general manager of the New York Nets. In that position, he represented the Nets at several ABA Board of Trustees meetings.

The toughest decision DeBusschere has faced during his four weeks as commissioner occurred today when he presided at a trustees' meeting concerning disposition of the financially wobbly Memphis and San Diego franchises.

DeBusschere said Thursday he would prefer he league to operate with 10 teams next season, rather than eight if Memphis and San Diego were disbanded. It put him in conflict with league President John Y. Brown of Kentucky, who was one of DeBusschere's biggest boosters for the commissioner's job.

"It is a much healthier situation if we have 10 strong teams," said DeBusschere. But he admitted that at present, there are only eight strong clubs. The weak teams are Memphis and San Diego, which had the league's lowest attendances last season.

Brown, meanwhile, charged that the existence of the Memphis and San Diego teams contributed heavily to Kentucky experiencing its worst season financially although the Colonels won their first league title.

"Our payroll was a little higher and the cost of operating has increased," Brown said, "but what made it doubly bad was Memphis and San Diego. They lost a million dollars each, and the other eight clubs had to make up for that.

On a more positive note, DeBusschere announced two rule changes for the 1975-76 season. One will be the switch from the 30-second shot clock to a 24-second clock.

The other also invovles the shot clock. DeBusschere said it would not be reset to 10 seconds when the offensive team loses the ball out of bounds with less than 10 seconds remaining. Instead, it will be placed at the number of seconds remaining when the team lost the ball.

Texas bids for title

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — There'll be no third-or fourth-place finish for Texas this time around in the College World Series.

The Longhorns have finished in those disappointing positions five of the last six years.

"We came here with the idea of winning the national championship and our job is not over," said Texas Coach Cliff Gustafson after his team crushed South Carolina 17-6 with an 18-hit attack Thursday night.

"We hope to complete our mission Saturday night."

South Carolina's intital defeat in the tournament left three teams once-beaten. The Gamecocks battle Arizona State tonight to decide Texas' title game opponent.

Arizona State, 61-12, used a masterful four-hitter by John Poloni and Bob Pate's 11th-inning run-scoring single to eliminate Oklahoma 1-0 in the night's other game.

Texas, making its seventh series bid in eight years, received a bye into the finals in a drawing among the three survivors after its battering of South Carolina.

Texas, 55-6, captured series titles in 1949 and 1950, but since it's been frustration — 14 series trips with a title game chance only in 1953.

Powell among golf leaders

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Jack House, the defending champion, leads the championship flight into today's final 18 holes of the 22nd annual Missouri Seniors Golf Association tournament with a two-over-par 38-36—74.

House, from Kansas City, led Virgil Powell of Malden, by one stroke, and Jim Benson of St. Louis by two in Thursday's opening 18-hole round at the Twin Hills Country Club. Prizes will be awarded in six age flights.

Other former champions competing are Wilbur Bartles, Kansas City, the 1973 winner, who shot a first-round 82; Joe Switzer, St. Louis, 1968 winner, 81, and Tom Lawrence, Kansas City, 1970 winner, who also shot an 81 Thursday.

Reds rule Cardinals

CINCINNATI (AP) — Gary Nolan treads softly when talk of a 20-victory season arises, but not Joe Morgan.

"Before the season started, I figured him for 15 victories if he could pitch without pain. Now I figure him for 20," said Morgan.

The Cincinnati Reds' feisty second baseman provided a two-run pinch single Thursday night, setting the stage for a two-run double by Nolan to key a seven-run inning against St. Louis.

The Reds won 10-1 as Nolan notched his sixth straight victory. It was his seventh victory against three losses.

"He should be unbeaten. We didn't give him any runs early in the year," said Morgan, who missed two games with an injured shoulder.

Nolan remains tight-lipped about any 1975 goals. "I just want to go out every fifth day and keep us in the ballgame. That's my only goal."

Nolan permitted only three hits in six innings before leaving with a 10-0 lead.

Morgan says the 27-year-old righthander is nearing his 1972 form when he was 12-3 at the All-Star break.

"I still don't think he's near his peak," said Morgan. "But he's 98 per cent there."

Nolan, in recording his first victory over St. Louis since 1970, says his biggest problem is inability to recall the strengths and weaknesses of the individual hitters.

"Johnny Bench has been a big help," said Nolan, who broke into baseball in 1967 with Bench as his 19-year-old battery mate.

The victory was Cincinnati's 18th in the last 23 games. The Reds, who won six games during their eight-game homestand, have won 24 of 31 at Riverfront Stadium.

The losing pitcher was Lynn McGlothen, 6-5, who departed trailing 3 0. The Reds erupted in the sixth off Ron Bryant, who was making his first appearance since retiring during spring training. A 24-game winner in 1973, Bryant was roughed up for three quick runs and Ryan Kurosaki was victimized for four more in one third of an inning.

Brock trails star balloting

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Bench is among four Cincinnati Reds dominating the early balloting for the National League All-Star team, released Friday by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office.

Bench, who has been on the NL team the last seven years and started the last six, has a huge lead for the catching spot — 327,894 votes to 60,713 for runner-up Manny Sanguillen of Pittsburgh.

The other Reds topping early returns are Joe Morgan at second base, Dave Concepcion at shortstop and Pete Rose in the outfield.

Morgan has drawn 249,174 votes thus far, nearly five times as many as Pittsburgh's Rennie Stennett, presently second in the tally with 55,778.

Concepcion, seeking his first starting role, has attracted 182,836 votes, followed by Larry Bowa of Philadelphia with 136,121. Rose has 215,612 in the outfielder's race, followed close behind by the Mets' Rusty Staub with 151,322 and Del Unser with 147,583. Neither Staub nor Unser have started previously, though Staub was a reserve five consecutive times (1967-71) and played in three games.

Base-stealing ace Lou Brock of St. Louis is also an outfield contender with 108,086 votes, as is Los Angeles' Jimmy Wynn with 98,347.

Two Los Angeles Dodgers have an early advantage in the infield. The Dodgers leaders are first baseman Steve Garvey, a write-in selection in 1974 who ended up most valuable player in the midseason classic, with 191,197 ballots and third baseman Ron Cey with 203,815.

New York's Mike Phillips has drawn the most votes of any write-in candidate this year, polling 28,489 to place him No. 5 among shortstops.

Current American League leaders include second baseman Ron Carew of Minnesota and outfielder-designated hitter Hank Aaron of Milwaukee, both of whom have been chosen as starters every year since fan balloting began in 1970. Other AL leaders, announced last Monday, are Yankee catcher Thurman Munson, first baseman George Scott of Milwaukee, third baseman Aurelio Rodriguez of Detroit, shortstop Bert Campaneris of Oakland and A's outfielders Reggie Jackson and Joe Rudi.

Pitchers and the remainder of the squad will be chosen by the All-Star coaches.

Arnold leads Dollar sales

The Sikeston Little League, Junior Babe Ruth and Senior Babe Ruth fund-raising program is finishing to check presentation June 19th, from its sponsor — Sikeston's Burger King Restaurant.

Ron Kreup, Sales Director for Drury Industries, franchisee of Sikeston's Burger King Restaurant, announced today that the Little League Division had turned in nearly $7,000.00 of "Have It Your Way" Delicious Dollar sales as of June 10th. This will mean a donation of nearly $3,500.00 to the Little League alone.

The fund-raising program included several incentive programs for the boys to sell the Delicious Dollars. Mike Foster, Little League Commissioner, along with Ron Kruep, announced the incentive winners today:

1) Grand Prize — The two teams selling the most Delicious Dollars won an all expense paid trip to see the St. Louis Cardinals vs. Houston Astros this Sunday, June 15. The winners are:

1st — Manager Jim Alford's "Malone & Hyde" Little League Team with 567 Delicious Dollar Sales

2nd — Manager Steve Weatherford's "Bank of Sikeston" Little League Team with 513 Delicious Dollar sales

2) Three Second Prizes — a $25.00 Gift Certificate good at the sporting goods store of the boys choice in each division for the boys selling the most Delicious Dollars. The winners are:

(A) Mike Arnold, Little League "Bridgers" with 200
(B) Ed Wason,Jr. Babe Ruth "Eagles" with 89
(C) Gary Silverthrone, Sr. Babe Ruth "Elks" with 75

3) Third Prizes — Nearly 245 boys were presented a free dinner on Burger King (Whopper, fries, and Coke) for selling a minimum of 25 Delicious Dollars.

In addition to the scheduled prizes, Mike Arnold of the "Bridger" team was invited to attend the St. Louis Cardinal game due to his outstanding effort.

If anyone is interested in seeing the kids off to the ballgame Sunday, June 15, Ron Kruep announced that the bus would leave Sikeston's Burger King Restaurant at 9:00 AM SHARP.

ABA makes rule changes

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave DeBusschere obviously is finding his new job as American Basketball Association commissioner very difficult.

"I would rather be playing," DeBusschere, a former National Basketball Association All Star, said Thursday at his first news conference since replacing Tedd Munchak as commissioner on May 15.

The 34-year-old DeBusschere, the youngest commissioner in the history of pro basketball, showed his unfamiliarity with the position and his nervousness by continually flipping and spinning an ABA ball during his brief encounter with the media.

"There are some very difficult decisions to make," admitted DeBusschere, "but that's par for the course, just as there were when I was a trustee."

DeBusschere prepped for the commissioner's job by serving one season as general manager of the New York Nets. In that position, he represented the Nets at several ABA Board of Trustees meetings.

The toughest decision DeBusschere has faced during his four weeks as commissioner occurred today when he presided at a trustees' meeting concerning disposition of the financially wobbly Memphis and San Diego franchises.

DeBusschere said Thursday he would prefer he league to operate with 10 teams next season, rather than eight if Memphis and San Diego were disbanded. It put him in conflict with league President John Y. Brown of Kentucky, who was one of DeBusschere's biggest boosters for the commissioner's job.

"It is a much healthier situation if we have 10 strong teams," said DeBusschere. But he admitted that at present, there are only eight strong clubs. The weak teams are Memphis and San Diego, which had the league's lowest attendances last season.

Brown, meanwhile, charged that the existence of the Memphis and San Diego teams contributed heavily to Kentucky experiencing its worst season financially although the Colonels won their first league title.

"Our payroll was a little higher and the cost of operating has increased," Brown said, "but what made it doubly bad was Memphis and San Diego. They lost a million dollars each, and the other eight clubs had to make up for that.

On a more positive note, DeBusschere announced two rule changes for the 1975-76 season. One will be the switch from the 30-second shot clock to a 24-second clock.

The other also invovles the shot clock. DeBusschere said it would not be reset to 10 seconds when the offensive team loses the ball out of bounds with less than 10 seconds remaining. Instead, it will be placed at the number of seconds remaining when the team lost the ball.

Texas bids for title

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — There'll be no third-or fourth-place finish for Texas this time around in the College World Series.

The Longhorns have finished in those disappointing positions five of the last six years.

"We came here with the idea of winning the national championship and our job is not over," said Texas Coach Cliff Gustafson after his team crushed South Carolina 17-6 with an 18-hit attack Thursday night.

"We hope to complete our mission Saturday night."

South Carolina's intital defeat in the tournament left three teams once-beaten. The Gamecocks battle Arizona State tonight to decide Texas' title game opponent.

Arizona State, 61-12, used a masterful four-hitter by John Poloni and Bob Pate's 11th-inning run-scoring single to eliminate Oklahoma 1-0 in the night's other game.

Texas, making its seventh series bid in eight years, received a bye into the finals in a drawing among the three survivors after its battering of South Carolina.

Texas, 55-6, captured series titles in 1949 and 1950, but since it's been frustration — 14 series trips with a title game chance only in 1953.

Powell among golf leaders

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Jack House, the defending champion, leads the championship flight into today's final 18 holes of the 22nd annual Missouri Seniors Golf Association tournament with a two-over-par 38-36—74.

House, from Kansas City, led Virgil Powell of Malden, by one stroke, and Jim Benson of St. Louis by two in Thursday's opening 18-hole round at the Twin Hills Country Club. Prizes will be awarded in six age flights.

Other former champions competing are Wilbur Bartles, Kansas City, the 1973 winner, who shot a first-round 82; Joe Switzer, St. Louis, 1968 winner, 81, and Tom Lawrence, Kansas City, 1970 winner, who also shot an 81 Thursday.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The price of success — if you're a fan of the Philadelphia Flyers — is $1 a game. That's how much the National Hockey League champions have raised prices.

Announcing the increase in a letter sent Thursday to season ticket holders, the two-time Stanley Cup winners blamed inflation and pointed out that they probably could have raised prices quite a bit more and still sold out every game.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The price of success — if you're a fan of the Philadelphia Flyers — is $1 a game. That's how much the National Hockey League champions have raised prices.

Announcing the increase in a letter sent Thursday to season ticket holders, the two-time Stanley Cup winners blamed inflation and pointed out that they probably could have raised prices quite a bit more and still sold out every game.

Mr. Charles Blanton, Editor

Dear Mr. Blanton,

I am grateful to your newspaper for presenting an opportunity of the general public to compliment or criticize decisions made within the city of Sikeston.

In reference to a letter you received last week from me, the complaint against Mr. Charles Mitchell is no longer a valid statement of fact. As of Friday morning I received notice from Mr. Mitchell that his decision to burn his property next door to Mom's home had been cancelled. The property will be removed in a more agreeable manner as you read in his enclosed letter copy. Thank you again for your open forum. There is no longer a need to print the complaint I wrote to you earlier.

Sincerely,
Rita Ann Sewald

Mrs. Rita Ann Mathis Sewald
Box 14, Southern Baptist College
Walnut Ridge, Arkansas 72476

Good Morning Mrs. Sewald:

I received your letter of June 4th today. I think it is presumptious on your part and to quote "allow the flames of todays profit-centered society" is unwarranted.

I have done nothing but improve the property next door to your Mother and have been very attentative to her request.

The building will be removed ... not burned.

The City first suggested that I burn the building, but after discussing it with your Mother, I decided to haul it off, which we are to have done next week, if weather permits.

I knew your father before you were born and would not have done anything to cause your Mother any problems.

Very truly yours,
Charles M. Mitchell

Dear Sir

On behalf of the SEMO Chapter of the National Foundation - March of Dimes, I want to thank you for your help in publicizing our 1975 campaign against birth defects.

The FBLA of Sikeston, FLBA of New Madrid Vocational School, many FHA groups, and interested volunteers made this 1975 drive a success.

Your cooperation and generosity in donating newspaper space for our campaign releases were greatly appreciated. Due to your help, I am confident the March of Dimes' programs of research, community services, and education will be expanded ai d intensified, thereby leading the way toward elimination of birth defects.

Thank you
Louise Miller
Executive Secretary

I am grateful to your newspaper for presenting an opportunity of the general public to compliment or criticize decisions made within the city of Sikeston.

In reference to a letter you received last week from me, the complaint against Mr. Charles Mitchell is no longer a valid statement of fact. As of Friday morning I received notice from Mr. Mitchell that his decision to burn his property next door to Mom's home had been cancelled. The property will be removed in a more agreeable manner as you read in his enclosed letter copy. Thank you again for your open forum. There is no longer a need to print the complaint I wrote to you earlier.

Sincerely,
Rita Ann Sewald

Good Morning Mrs. Sewald:

I received your letter of June 4th today. I think it is presumptious on your part and to quote "allow the flames of todays profit-centered society" is unwarranted.

I have done nothing but improve the property next door to your Mother and have been very attentative to her request.

The building will be removed ... not burned.

The City first suggested that I burn the building, but after discussing it with your Mother, I decided to haul it off, which we are to have done next week, if weather permits.

I knew your father before you were born and would not have done anything to cause your Mother any problems.

Very truly yours,
Charles M. Mitchell

Dear Sir

On behalf of the SEMO Chapter of the National Foundation - March of Dimes, I want to thank you for your help in publicizing our 1975 campaign against birth defects.

The FBLA of Sikeston, FLBA of New Madrid Vocational School, many FHA groups, and interested volunteers made this 1975 drive a success.

Your cooperation and generosity in donating newspaper space for our campaign releases were greatly appreciated. Due to your help, I am confident the March of Dimes' programs of research, community services, and education will be expanded and intensified, thereby leading the way toward elimination of birth defects.

Thank you
Louise Miller
Executive Secretary

Businesses clear shelves at record clip

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's businesses unloaded a record $1.9 billion in inventories from their store shelves and warehouses in April, the second record monthly decline in inventories in a row, the Commerce Department reported today.

The big reduction in inventories, which has been under way throughout most of the economy all spring, is considered by government economists to be a necessary requirement before the nation's business recession ends and the economy can grow again.

Inventories declined at virtually all levels of the economy in April, with manufacturing inventories down $1.2 billion, retail inventories down $270 million and wholesale inventories down $497 million.

But the Commerce Department said automobile inventories at the retail level did not follow the trend, rising $96 million during the month. However, this increase was more than offset by decreases in inventories of furniture, appliances and other durable goods.

Street paving project discussed

EAST PRAIRIE — A street-paving program was discussed by the City Council Thursday night and a proposal was advanced that a certain percentage of the city's one-cent sales tax be designated solely for future street paving and improvements.

It was also proposed by Mayor Hunt Wellborn that a citizens advisory committee be established to survey city streets and determine where improvements are most needed and submit recommendations to the council.

A list of prospective committee members, selected by Wellborn and City Manager Frank Carter, will be presented for council approval at the next meeting.

According to an announcement made by Carter, Ron Yersak of the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission office at Malden, will meet with members of the council and other community leaders Tuesday night for a discussion of availability of federal and state grants.

The council approved the city's annual contribution of $150 to the Bootheel Law Enforcement Assistance Council crime laboratory in Cape Girardeau.

Liquor licenses renewed for the coming year include Phonzie Brown, tavern and package liquor store; Billy Yaeger, package liquor; Hugh Treadway, package liquor; an Norman Ray Jones, tavern.

In routine action, the council approved the collector's report for May of $17,674.61, expenditures of $9,921.07 and the police judge report showing a total of $942 assessed in fines.

Bernie council reschedules June meeting

BERNIE--A City Council meeting scheduled Thursday night was postponed due to the absence of Mayor R.B. Wood and one alderman who were out of town.

The meeting was rescheduled for 7 p.m. Monday in the city hall.

Malden tax rate to remain same

MALDEN — The City Council Wednesday night set the 1976 city tax rate at $1.50 per $100 valuation, the same as this year's rate.

The council voted to purchase a new police car and to advertise for bids for the old car.

Sealed bids for gasoline to be used in city vehicles during the months of July, August and September will be opened at the June 23 meeting. The council will also advertise for bids for the city's health and life insurance program.

Bids are due no later than July 15.

A request by the Chamber of Commerce to allow the Business and Professional Women's Club to paint city fire plugs was granted. The plugs will be painted red, white and blue in observance of the country's Bicentennial celebration.

A petition was presented to the council from residents of the Gray Addition requesting the blacktopping of streets in that addition and the blacktopping of Broadwater Street – the only street leading from the addition to the city limits.

The matter was postponed due to the fact that Broadwater Street is not wide enough. The city will try to secure additional land from peoperty owners on each side of the street before any further action will be taken.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Craig presented an application for a beer license now owned by Smokehouse Restaurant Inn. The matter was postponed when the city discovered the restaurant had also reapplied for the license.

According to City Clerk Roscoe Thornton, this came as a surprise to the council because the Smokehouse Restaurant burned recently and the owner died a few days later of a heart attack. The council discovered, however, that the owner had a partner, which had not been known prior to this time.

The owner of Rhodes Grocery appeared before the council and protested a previously submitted petition requesting the blacktopping of Russell Street. She said she owned more property on the street than all the other property owners put together and did not want the street blacktopped.

The matter was turned over to the city attorney, who will check to determine if Russell is a street or an alley and if the decision to blacktop should be made by a majority of property owners or the person owning the most property.

The council voted to draw up an ordinance to erect a three-way stop sign where an alley and Francis Street intersect into Frisco Park. The council has received several complaints of traffic problems at the intersection.

A license was renewed for Federal Mogul Corp. for another year, and the Jaycee Wives were granted permission to have a picnic in Frisco Park on July 18.

Oil find excites state officials

CREOLA, Ala. (AP) — Getty Oil Co. has confirmed an oil discovery that state officials have called the most exciting find in the Southeast in the last 20 years.

An announcement Thursday by the Houston, Tex., based oil firm capped a week of testing in this oil-rich south Alabama area. The tests revealed that Getty's Lyles Hatter 4-10 No. 1 well produced at a daily rate of five million cubic feet of gas and more than 1,500 barrels of condensate, a high-grade hydrocarbon.

The Hatter well is about one mile west of Getty's Peter Kline 3-14 No. 1 well. At that site, oil was produced late last year at the rate of about 3,400 barrels of condensate per day.

Getty and Alabama Oil and Gas Board officials have said the specific gravity of the oil in the Getty area is extremely high, indicating a high quality, naturally refined oil.

An estimate of the amount of oil under the south Alabama land and its potential effect on domestic oil supplies is not immediately possible, officials said. As testing goes on, however, geologists and engineers will get an increasingly better view of what may or may not be below the surface.

Survey reveals Ford's rating up

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's over-all job-rating is decreasing while President Ford's is on the rise, a Harris survey says.

A 56-37 per cent positive rating for Kissinger reflects a loss of 12 percentage points since last March, the pollster said. A year ago, Kissinger registered his record high of 85-10 per cent.

Triskaidekaphobiacs, it's all in your mind, a psychologist says

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Today is the day that all acute triskaidekaphobiacs fear the most. But one psychologist says Friday the 13th will turn out unlucky only if you think it will.

"We call it 'selective perception,'" says Dr. Charles Verschoor, a psychologist at Miami-Dade Community College. "Every single day of your life, something pretty adversive happens. On Friday the 13th, you get your mind tuned up to notice."

According to a recent article in Psychology Today magazine, American business loses half a billion dollars a year in business losses each year because many people stay home from work on Friday the 13th.

Authorities say triskaidekaphobia — fear of the number 13 — has been around since the days of early Greece. There were 13 persons seated at Christ's Last Supper, and Friday the 13th is the traditional day for witches to hold black masses.

Numerologist Vincent Lopez says 13 is generally disliked because it includes the numbers one and three, which add up to four. He said four "is a factual, realistic number. It's a tough number. People don't like to face facts."

Most apartment houses and hotels don't have floors or apartments numbered 13, and many airplanes don't have seats with that unfortunate designation.

But all that isn't stopping Robert Spedding, 20, of Miami and Carol Capp, 18, of Tampa from getting married today.

"We wanted a day that sounded unusual, and we didn't want to wait until July 4th," said the prospective bride, who apparently is a careful sort. "According to my horoscope, it's good luck today."

Panel to look into powers of rule-making agencies

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.(AP) — A legislative-citizens panel will look into rule-making powers of state agencies under a proposal that has been introduced in the Missouri Senate.

Meanwhile Thursday, the legislature sent a bill to the governor that would require the secretary of state's office to maintain a Missouri Registry where all rules made by state agencies would be printed.

The measure left out a controversial section that would have given the General Assembly the power to repeal or change any rules it dislikes by a legislature-approved resolution.

The proposal to set up a committee of 10 legislators and 15 citizens would order a report on the rule-making powers by December 1976. The resolution was introduced by Springfield Republican Paul Bradshaw.

Area meetings to discuss funds grant guidelines

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Guidelines for obtaining nearly $5 million in federal funds to improve rural roads and bridges will be discussed with county officials throughout Missouri in a series of area meetings, the state Association of Counties has announced.

Local governments will have to match 30 per cent of the grant to receive the money. Gov. Christopher S. Bond released the funds in mid-April.

The meetings, sponsored by the association, will be here June 18, Plattsburg June 19, Kirksville June 20, Springfield June 23, Clayton June 24 and Cape Girardeau June 25.

Establishment operator drowns

ELLSINORE, Mo. (AP) Oscar Marler, 50, operator of a truck stop at the edge of this southeast Missouri town, drowned in a farm pond today.

The Missouri Highway Patrol reported he apparently fell from a boat when he became entangled in a trot line he was checking about 5:30 a. m.

Marler was the operator of Denny's Truck Stop on U. S. 60 about one mile west of Ellsinore and 25 miles northwest of Poplar Bluff, Mo.

The pond is behind the truck stop. Ellsinore's city marshal discovered Marler's body.

BERNIE--A City Council meeting scheduled Thursday night was postponed due to the absence of Mayor R.B. Wood and one alderman who were out of town.

The meeting was rescheduled for 7 p.m. Monday in the city hall.

Triskaidekaphobiacs, it's all in your mind, a psychologist says

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Today is the day that all acute triskaidekaphobiacs fear the most. But one psychologist says Friday the 13th will turn out unlucky only if you think it will.

"We call it 'selective perception,'" says Dr. Charles Verschoor, a psychologist at Miami-Dade Community College. "Every single day of your life, something pretty adversive happens. On Friday the 13th, you get your mind tuned up to notice."

According to a recent article in Psychology Today magazine, American business loses half a billion dollars a year in business losses each year because many people stay home from work on Friday the 13th.

Authorities say triskaidekaphobia — fear of the number 13 — has been around since the days of early Greece. There were 13 persons seated at Christ's Last Supper, and Friday the 13th is the traditional day for witches to hold black masses.

Numerologist Vincent Lopez says 13 is generally disliked because it includes the numbers one and three, which add up to four. He said four "is a factual, realistic number. It's a tough number. People don't like to face facts."

Most apartment houses and hotels don't have floors or apartments numbered 13, and many airplanes don't have seats with that unfortunate designation.

But all that isn't stopping Robert Spedding, 20, of Miami and Carol Capp, 18, of Tampa from getting married today.

"We wanted a day that sounded unusual, and we didn't want to wait until July 4th," said the prospective bride, who apparently is a careful sort. "According to my horoscope, it's good luck today."

Malden tax rate to remain same

MALDEN — The City Council Wednesday night set the 1976 city tax rate at $1.50 per $100 valuation, the same as this year's rate.

The council voted to purchase a new police car and to advertise for bids for the old car.

Sealed bids for gasoline to be used in city vehicles during the months of July, August and September will be opened at the June 23 meeting. The council will also advertise for bids for the city's health and life insurance program.

Bids are due no later than July 15.

A request by the Chamber of Commerce to allow the Business and Professional Women's Club to paint city fire plugs was granted. The plugs will be painted red, white and blue in observance of the country's Bicentennial celebration.

A petition was presented to the council from residents of the Gray Addition requesting the blacktopping of streets in that addition and the blacktopping of Broadwater Street -- the only street leading from the addition to the city limits.

The matter was postponed due to the fact that Broadwater Street is not wide enough. The city will try to secure additional land from peoperty owners on each side of the street before any further action will be taken.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Craig presented an application for a beer license now owned by Smokehouse Restaurant Inn. The matter was postponed when the city discovered the restaurant had also reapplied for the license.

According to City Clerk Roscoe Thornton, this came as a surprise to the council because the Smokehouse Restaurant burned recently and the owner died a few days later of a heart attack. The council discovered, however, that the owner had a partner, which had not been known prior to this time.

The owner of Rhodes Grocery appeared before the council and protested a previously submitted petition requesting the blacktopping of Russell Street. She said she owned more property on the street than all the other property owners put together and did not want the street blacktopped.

The matter was turned over to the city attorney, who will check to determine if Russell is a street or an alley and if the decision to blacktop should be made by a majority of property owners or the person owning the most property.

The council voted to draw up an ordinance to erect a three-way stop sign where an alley and Francis Street intersect into Frisco Park. The council has received several complaints of traffic problems at the intersection.

A license was renewed for Federal Mogul Corp. for another year, and the Jaycee Wives were granted permission to have a picnic in Frisco Park on July 18.

Panel to look into powers of rule-making agencies

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.(AP) — A legislative-citizens panel will look into rule-making powers of state agencies under a proposal that has been introduced in the Missouri Senate.

Meanwhile Thursday, the legislature sent a bill to the governor that would require the secretary of state's office to maintain a Missouri Registry where all rules made by state agencies would be printed.

The measure left out a controversial section that would have given the General Assembly the power to repeal or change any rules it dislikes by a legislature-approved resolution.

The proposal to set up a committee of 10 legislators and 15 citizens would order a report on the rule-making powers by December 1976. The resolution was introduced by Springfield Republican Paul Bradshaw.

Area meetings to discuss funds grant guidelines

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Guidelines for obtaining nearly $5 million in federal funds to improve rural roads and bridges will be discussed with county officials throughout Missouri in a series of area meetings, the state Association of Counties has announced.

Local governments will have to match 30 per cent of the grant to receive the money. Gov. Christopher S. Bond released the funds in mid-April.

The meetings, sponsored by the association, will be here June 18, Plattsburg June 19, Kirksville June 20, Springfield June 23, Clayton June 24 and Cape Girardeau June 25.

Establishment operator drowns

ELLSINORE, Mo. (AP) Oscar Marler, 50, operator of a truck stop at the edge of this southeast Missouri town, drowned in a farm pond today.

The Missouri Highway Patrol reported he apparently fell from a boat when he became entangled in a trot line he was checking about 5:30 a. m.

Marler was the operator of Denny's Truck Stop on U. S. 60 about one mile west of Ellsinore and 25 miles northwest of Poplar Bluff, Mo.

The pond is behind the truck stop. Ellsinore's city marshal discovered Marler's body.

Oil find excites state officials

CREOLA, Ala. (AP) — Getty Oil Co. has confirmed an oil discovery that state officials have called the most exciting find in the Southeast in the last 20 years.

An announcement Thursday by the Houston, Tex., based oil firm capped a week of testing in this oil-rich south Alabama area. The tests revealed that Getty's Lyles Hatter 4-10 No. 1 well produced at a daily rate of five million cubic feet of gas and more than 1,500 barrels of condensate, a high-grade hydrocarbon.

The Hatter well is about one mile west of Getty's Peter Kline 3-14 No. 1 well. At that site, oil was produced late last year at the rate of about 3,400 barrels of condensate per day.

Getty and Alabama Oil and Gas Board officials have said the specific gravity of the oil in the Getty area is extremely high, indicating a high quality, naturally refined oil.

An estimate of the amount of oil under the south Alabama land and its potential effect on domestic oil supplies is not immediately possible, officials said. As testing goes on, however, geologists and engineers will get an increasingly better view of what may or may not be below the surface.

Survey reveals Ford's rating up

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's over-all job-rating is decreasing while President Ford's is on the rise, a Harris survey says.

A 56-37 per cent positive rating for Kissinger reflects a loss of 12 percentage points since last March, the pollster said. A year ago, Kissinger registered his record high of 85-10 per cent.

Out of grandma's album

Many brides this year seem to be stepping right out of great-grandmother's wedding album, and into their own 1975 wedding picture. The pose may be deceptive (to "love, honor and obey" is not in every couple's ceremony today), but the spirit of mutual respech and nostalgia is very apparent, particularly in the fashions for both men and women.

Emily Post updates guide

NEW YORK (AP)—In 1922 it was called "The Blue Book of Social Usage" and it reflected a world of white gloves, afternoon teas, chaperones, butler-staffed houses and formal rules of etiquette laid down by its author, Emily Post.

Today, in its 13th revision and still bound in blue, it's called "The New Emily Post's Etiquette" and its current author, Elizabeth L. Post, discusses wedding attire for pregnant brides and birth announcements from unwed parents.

"Emily Post would have been shocked, as would almost anyone who lived through the Victorian Age," admits her grand-daughter-in-law, who has revised the book twice before—the last time in 1969. "But I also know she realized etiquette had to change as times change."

The present Mrs. Post isn't always happy about the changes, she admitted in an interview. "There's no question, though, that when something is widely done you have to consider it more seriously. I don't always approve, but manners must keep up with lifestyles."

Thus she grudgingly okays the use of Ms., which "serves a useful purpose in business," though she doesn't like it socially. "I don't see why women are anxious to hide their maritial status in social situations," she says. "In fact, I would like to see men have a term to establish whether or not they're married, rather than eradicate the designations for women. It's helpful."

As for how to refer to a "roommate" of the opposite sex, she thinks "covivant" is the most indicative word she has heard used. But when it comes to introductions, she suggests saying "John's friend" to the older generation and "the girl he's sharing an apartment with" to a peer.

When the roommates come home for an overnight visit, everybody has a right to stick to his own standards and what is right in his own home, Mrs. Post believes. "If you have a good relationship your children will know how you feel and won't embarrass you.

"There's no reason an unwed mother shouldn't have a baby shower," says the author, "though I wouldn't make a big production of it. Many girls are proud and happy and want their babies and if they feel that way there's no reason they shouldn't send announcements if they wish. I try not to get into the moral issues but talk about how to cope."

Pointing out that the women's liberation movement has strongly affected manners, Mrs. Post declares she's all for going Dutch with someone you go out with often, though she still thinks the man should pay the first time he asks a woman out.

Mrs. Post, who is author of several books on etiquette and frequently lectures on the subject, also writes a nationally syndicated column. The new edition of the etiquette book, she says, reflects areas of broadest interest as indicated by letters to the column.

"The subject of weddings draws the most mail," she reports. "Even if a girl has been living with a man she wants a lovely wedding. It is still a big day in the life of a mother and daughter.

"A large percentage of letters deal with divorce problems—people who are divorced or whose parents are divorced—and the question of who should be invited to the wedding or give the bride away," she continues. "It is very difficult. All I can do is to come to an answer that will make the best situation for the most people. You can't establish rules where relationships vary so much."

When she isn't dealing with matters of etiquette the 55-year-old "Libby" Post indulges in her favorite sports, fishing, or her hobbies of traveling, gardening, cooking and painting.

She lives in Waterbury Center, Vt., with her husband, William G. Post, who was Emily Post's only grandson and who is director of the Emily Post Institute. They have four grown children.

Budget weddings

Help for the pocketbook

Weddings can be a nightmare of unpaid bills. Fortunately, the "budget wedding" has come about from necessity and is actually in vogue.

An obvious way to cut corners is to whittle down the number of guests and wedding party.

With flowers, the bridal bouquet is usually a must. The cheapest style is the Williamsburg which means a tight cluster. It should be outlined in nylon tulle, not flowers.

Stay away from roses, stephanotis and orchids. Rather, use carnations (can be tinted any color), daisies and spring flowers.

If you must have roses or orchids, choose the cheaper variety of sweetheart or baby roses and cymbidium orchids. Or use a white Bible with one orchid atop it.

Bridesmaids can carry smaller bouquets or a single long-stemmed rose. Many Sikeston brides are not decorating everyone with a corsage or boutonniere--namely, mothers, fathers or ushers and even grandmothers and grandfathers.

For church arrangements, gladiolas, white stock, marigolds, petunias and snapdragons work well. They should be at least 30 to 36 inches high and can be used again at the reception. Only one arrangement, if desired, is necessary at the reception. Use more candelabras draped with garlands of greenery of leather leaf.

Also popular are the cloth flowers easy to make. Avoid the expensive silk flowers.

If you have one arrangement on the reception table, it is not necessary to top the cake with flowers. Instead stick with the inexpensive bride and bridegroom statuettes.

A bride's going away corsage can be made from the bridal bouquet if she does not throw it to the bridesmaids.

In addition, candlelighters may wear corsages rather than wrist corsages as they can cost 25 to 50 cents more.

Flower girls should carry a basket of spring flowers and mixed daisies as rose petals stain carpeting.

If bridesmaids wear flowers in their hair, have them choose pink, painted daisies, split carnations or baby's breath set on headbands.

Some florist shops offer package deals which may be cheaper if they have exactly what you want. Flowers for a small wedding could cost $100.

Photography studios are also heavy on package deals. It is better to hire a professional photographer because many studios will not enlarge photos your uncle, brother or first cousin shot with a 35 mm camera.

The best thing to do is compare studios against these points:

Displays. Often this will reveal the quality, craftmanship and creativity of the studios.

Prices. Do not be hesitant to ask what things cost as each picture ordered is going to hike the budget higher.

Packages. Ask what they include. Some studios will throw in an album, a preview book, a black and white photo for the newspaper and a photo for the minister.

Then reserve a photographer six weeks or earlier before the wedding. The heaviest months for photographers are June, July and August. The bride-to-be and her mother should come in and spend an hour with the photographer to learn these points.

It is wise to know how many of each pose you want on the first order because a second order will cost more. Unit selling is what makes photos cheaper in cost. Sikeston couples favor a package of 24 8x10 portraits, costing about $160.

As for invitations, the factory-stamped, regular-sized variety are cheaper than engraved ones. Parchment paper costs more than a plain white business color.

A bride also may utilize her artistic and poetic talents to create her own. Many brides use the church bulletin to announce to friends and some relatives of her wedding date. When invitations are sent, they quit at first cousins.

When it comes to choosing a wedding gown, the cheapest route is to sew it yourself. Even hiring a seamstress is often money-saving.

Select a pattern that does not require a ruffle cut on a bias as it takes extra fabric. Most gowns even when full use about five yards. Also very practical is a style that can be used for a wedding and worn later on formal occasions.

For fabric, polyesters in crepes, knits, satins aand eyelets work well. Gingham, organdies and chiffons are other ideas. Also very popular and new on the market is a flowing nylon fabric, Qiana.

Tulle veils can be attached to a contour band covered with rosettes made from the same material as the dress. Plain satin bows usually cost less than picture hats. Another way to save is to use a floor-length headpiece rather than a train.

Rice bags are cheaply made from fine net material cut in six-inch squares out of 108-inch wide fabric. Sewn lace tablecloths can highlight a reception table.

Most receptions are held at home or in the church. If you choose to hold one in a hotel or restaurant, expect to pay more. Usually restaurants charge cheaper rates but since you have cut down number of wedding guests and party, it might be feasible to invite them to an outdoor barbecue or dinner at home for a traditional rehearsal dinner.

The reception could also be held outside. Serv'ng nuts, mints, cake and ice cream is naturally cheaper than serving a meal. Most cookbooks on party or specialty foods have recipes for wedding cake and mints. Serve punch rather than champagne.

A big bonus from following the above budget stretchers is money left over for a honeymoon--a budget one, that is. It is a good idea to use a travel service because they make airplane reservations and have access to the kind of sightseeing tours, hotels and motels and car rental you can afford--all at no charge. They are paid on commission basis by the business you patronize.

In addition, an agency can offer a couple package deals which may include what they want to do. Package deals sometimes save money because of the extras included such as a special meal, champagne breakfasts and tips at the hotel. Packages vary at different times during the year.

Sikeston newlyweds seem to favor honeymoons at resort areas in the Ozarks. The cheapest plan is about $90 for three days and two nights while the most expensive is $290 for seven days and six nights with breakfast served on the balcony each morning.

The international flavor of New Orleans is also attractive and hotels in the French Quarter start at $24 to $32 a day.

A more expensive alternative is Acapulco, Mexico where cliffside resorts have rooms with their own pools and the couple is served continental breakfast each morning and travel in a pink and white jeep. Price tag: $252. Round trip air fare is $240 per person.

Budget-stretching may not sound glamorous but after the inexpensive wedding is over, mountains of outrageous bills will not blot out pleasant memories.

The international flavor of New Orleans is also attractive and hotels in the French Quarter start at $24 to $32 a day.

A more expensive alternative is Acapulco, Mexico where cliffside resorts have rooms with their own pools and the couple is served continental breakfast each morning and travel in a pink and white jeep. Price tag: $252. Round trip air fare is $240 per person.

Budget-stretching may not sound glamorous but after the inexpensive wedding is over, mountains of outrageous bills will not blot out pleasant memories.

Allow plenty of time for marriage license

Have you thought about that marriage license yet? It's a little more involved than just going to the county courthouse and signing up. Couples must allow themselves plenty of time to get the license, but yet still be married before the license expires.

In Missouri, a three-day waiting period is required. This period may start either from the date of application for the license or the date of the blood test results. For example if the blood test is already three-days old, the license may be issued upon application, according to the Scott County recorders office.

The ceremony must then take place within 10 days of issuance of the license.

The wedding gown
Bridal photographs
The bridal consultant and social secretary, if needed
The bride's trousseau
The household trousseau
Cost of the bride's premarital blood test for license
The bride's maiden dinner, if any
Total cost of the wedding reception
Flowers for the church and reception
Gratuities for off-duty traffic policemen or others asked to direct traffic at the site of the wedding
Corsages for the bride's mother and grandmothers, if they wish to wear them
Flowers for the bride, her attendants and her father's boutonniere (It is customary in some areas for the bridegroom to buy the bridal bouquet.)

Rehearsal dinner (This is traditionally a Midwestern custom.)
The wedding ring
The marriage license and cost of the bridegroom's premarital blood test.
The bride's flowers.
The bridegroom's boutonniere and also those of the ushers and his father

Playing dumb is out

NEW YORK (AP(— Remember how in the dark, dim pre-Women's Lib past, the human female was frequently portrayed as considerably less than bright? And when she was shown to possess an abundance of intelligence, how she might even minimize it herself, like "playing dumb to get a man"?

Back then, an apparent lack of intelligence on the part of a woman was often considered a sexual attribute. Well, according to a recent survey of super-intelligent women, such thinking is as passe as the old-fashioned petticoat.

Super-bright women of today have very definite and liberated views of their sex roles — and their roles in sex, too, for that matter.

Every one of the more than 300 women who had their opinions on sexual attitudes evaluated are as super-intelligent as any women, anywhere. All of them are members of Mensa, the international organization that admits members solely on the basis of an IQ that's in the top 2 per cent of the general population.

The survey's results, as recorded in Manfred F. DeMartino's recently published book, "Sex and the Intelligent Woman," clearly show that the traditional image of women has greatly changed.

We learn, for example, that highly intelligent women believe psychological aspects more important than physiological ones in their appraisal of men as lovers.

Apparently, intelligence helps make good marriages, too. Fifty-one per cent of the Mensa women surveyed describe their marriages as essentially happy — a tremendously impressive figure in these days of rising divorce rates.

On the clinical side, 56 per cent of the women tested see the strength of their sex drives as either "above average," "strong" or "very strong." One primary factor is their intensity of feelings of love or affection for their sexual mate.

One progressive attitude of the great majority of the Mensa women was their willingness to discuss openly virtually every aspect of sex and lovemaking. This openness is understandable considering that Mensa women (and men, also) represent just about every socio-economic level and are from every walk of life — housewives, professionals, students, laborers, merchants. They meet regularly in social gathering to discuss everything from politics and sex to cooking and fashions. Membership in the high IQ organization is achieved on the basis of proof of ratings on previously taken tests, or by taking the initial step of contacting the national headquarters to obtain a preliminary self-administered test.

Undoubtedly, the results of the Mensa survey reflect the growing spirit of Women's Lib. In evaluating it, psychologist-writer Albert Ellis states, "We now have literally millions of women who are militantly opposing the double standard of sexual morality and asserting the rights of women to choose the kind of sex-love affairs that they truly want."

(Mensa is at 50 E. 42nd St., New York. "Sex and the Ingelligent Woman" was published by Springer Publishing Co.)

Budget guide for newlyweds

The following is a guide prepared for newlyweds as they attempt to budget their money.

Housing: rent or mortgage payments, plus a few items of furniture...20-25 per cent.

Food: including workday lunches for the both of you, entertaining occasionally....20 per cent.

Clothing:, personal care; haircuts, cosmetics...10 per cent

Medical care: including health insurance, but assuming no major bills are needed, and also that you are both covered by your employers at least to some extent....3 per cent.

Transportation: including car expenses, other than unusual areas such as Los Angeles where car expenses are disproportionately high....11 per cent

Utilities: light, gas, telephone....five per cent

Gifts, contributions: ...3 per cent

Recreation: movies, trips, excl. entertaining...8 per cent

Insurance: life, homeowners, auto....3 per cent

Savings: some for "rainy days," some to build up assets....10 per cent

Miscellaneous: the unexpected, which is sure to happen; also includes laundry, cleaning, magazines, even, if you must, cigarettes....5 per cent.

Remember, this is just a guide. You and your spouse will adjust these figures to suit your own lifestyles and needs and future aims.

WEDDING CAKE

The wedding cake, to be shared by the newlyweds and their guests, signifies the "breaking of bread in kinship". The bride's knife signifies that the new wife is ready to accept the responsibilities of her role as keeper of her own household.

Why wear ring on third finger, left hand?

This custom is said to have originated with the ancients who believed that the third finger of the left hand was connected directly to the heart, by a vein.

In fact, as late as the 16th century, when "modern man" was awakening to many medical truths, the English Prayer Book of 1549 specifies the left hand as the hand for bride and groom. The custom may not apply to people of other than English origin.

TIPS ON GETTING ALONG AFTER THE WEDDING

If you have somehow gotten into a hassle and you're upset with one another, get it out of your system, if you can, during the day. It is extremely hazardous to a good marriage to go to bed mad..

Travel light on honeymoon

Certainly the honeymoon is no time to be weighted down with luggage.

Of course, you want to take what you will need, according to the climate you're heading into (your travel advisor can assist you here), but you will want to rely on good-looking blouses, skirts, slacks, shirts, undergarments, etc. of the most carefree fabrics obtrainable.

Think mix-and-match, and you've got it made (almost!). A few good items, plus perhaps one marvelous outfit, will do right by you; keep in mind that accessories can do a world of wonders, to suit the occasion. And by all means take comfortable shoes as well as that zippy pair you couldn't resist.

Plan to get along on one suitcase each, plus flight bags. You'll be glad you did!

Pack like an expert. Pack one "ready-for-anything" bag, for last-minute items, and believe us, there will be last-minute, "overlooked" treasures you must take.

They broke tradition

Mary Lynn Crugnale and Denny Alcorn

By JACKIE SCHOENEMAN
Women's Editor

Mary Lynn Crugnale and Denny Alcorn like to be different--but only if it is right for them.

Miss Crugnale, 18, of 206 Lee St., and Alcorn, 22, of 503 S. Main St., plan to marry whenever the day seems suitable. A minister will perform the ceremony and the couple will repeat the traditional vows in front of witnesses. However, no invitations were sent and no reception is planned. Only one wedding portrait of the couple will be made.

The bride will carry two long-stemmed roses and wear "whatever I see in the store and like. Probably something long and practical." The two will honeymoon later in the summer and take a well-planned car trip to the Smoky Mountains. All in all, the wedding will cost about $50.

Alcorn met his future wife when he was a freshman in college and she was a sophomore in high school. Miss Crugnale was campaigning for State Representative C.F. Cline at a fair in Morley.

Although the couple has dated ever since, there have been breakups, dating of others and the inevitable patching up.

During Miss Crugnale's junior year, both discussed plans of marriage at a future time. And when they happened onto antique gold wedding bands they liked, they bought them just in case the future did work out and they would have the rings paid for. Not receiving the traditional diamond was "no big thing" to Miss Crugnale although Alcorn did buy her a solitaire for graduation.

One of the biggest reasons the couple chose a short but sweet wedding are the hassles in planning a wedding.

"We thought about all the expenses for one hour's time. That's a lot of money down the drain," Alcorn said.

Miss Crugnale's reaction is "it's kind of scary, not knowing when it (the wedding) is going to happen."

Both felt no pressure from parents to have a traditional wedding. Miss Crugnale wavered a short time between a college education or marriage. Both agree that many big weddings are "a status symbol to see who has the most money."

Miss Crugnale says she does not feel cheated because the couple's wedding is "what I want. It's the person's prerogative. I do like to go to big weddings but the expense and formality is what I don't like.

I dreamed of a big wedding when I was a little girl. It's kind of natural. I think every girl wants a wedding. But I don't care about that now.

You'll always remember your wedding whether it was a big, lush one or if you have just a snapshot picture."

The couple will live in Alcorn's bachelor pad above the real estate business he shares with his father. Although the future Mrs. Alcorn does not plan to work, Alcorn would like to see her become a real estate saleswoman.

Both vow marriage will not make a difference in their lives because they have spent a lot of time with each other, often taking family vacations together.

Now most weekends are spent and will continue at the lake swimming and water skiing or playing tennis and motorcycling. Since they are on the go, a new microwave oven will come in handy.

Their wedding style may be too happy-go-lucky for some but at least the couple "won't be broke."

Ring styles vary in popularity

Although the lines and styles of wedding and engagement rings and bands has been expanded greatly in the past several years, couples in the Bootheel are choosing the diamond over any other stone for the bridesring.

Engagement and wedding rings are now being made with a diamond, which may be flanked by other stones, such as rubies or sapphires. But, jewelers in Sikeston report that rings with other stones have not enjoyed much popularity in this area.

Trio sets – that with the engagement ring and wedding bands for both bride and groom -- have increased in popularity the past · ear.

Single bands are not selected as often, but if chosen they are usually the plainly styled bands.

Just right

Choosing just the right wedding album to display those wonderful memories of a special day can be a hard decision. Louise Smith Britton looks pleased with the one she has "almost" decided on. Miss Smith became Mrs. Bill Britton Saturday at a ceremony at the Oneness Pentecostal Church in Morehouse.

Colorful flowers selected

Color seems to be the keyword in weddings this summer and fall --- especially color in the flowers used for bouquets and decorations.

A recent survey of area florists shows that daisies are the most popular flowers for spring and summer weddings this year. Sikeston florists say that brides are wanting a lot of color -- and a mixture of colors – colors which daisies can provide.

The daisies are being combined with carnations -- especially miniature carnations — roses, baby's breath, and other spring flowers for decorations and bouquets.

Brides are even wanting more color in their bouquets. Most florists said they very seldom sell an all white bridal bouquet any more. The brides are using colors which match their wedding colors, but are mainly favoring roses, carnations and baby's breath for their own use.

For bridesmaids, small nosegays are the most popular, although baskets of spring flowers are also still popular this year. Another popular object for a bridesmaid to carry is a long stemmed rose.

This year more and more flowers are being used in the hair and headwear, for brides and bridesmaids. Fresh flower add an extra accent to the picture hats which are so popular and are often tied to any streamers which may extend down the back of the head from a hat or other type headpeice.

Boutonnieres for men of the wedding party vary from daisies to carnations and roses; although the trend seems to be with the latter two.

Area florists report that people seem to be using more flowers and certainly not less than in the past.

Florists like to know one month in advance of the wedding what the bride's plans are --- and two weeks at the latest. Arranging for flowers in plenty of time will assure the bride of getting the flowers and equipment she wants and needs.

Colorful flowers selected

Color seems to be the keyword in weddings this summer and fall --- especially color in the flowers used for bouquets and decorations.

A recent survey of area florists shows that daisies are the most popular flowers for spring and summer weddings this year. Sikeston florists say that brides are wanting a lot of color -- and a mixture of colors -- colors which daisies can provide.

The daisies are being combined with carnations -- especially miniature carnations — roses, baby's breath, and other spring flowers for decorations and bouquets.

Brides are even wanting more color in their bouquets. Most florists said they very seldom sell an all white bridal bouquet any more. The brides are using colors which match their wedding colors, but are mainly favoring roses, carnations and baby's breath for their own use.

For bridesmaids, small nosegays are the most popular, although baskets of spring flowers are also still popular this year. Another popular object for a bridesmaid to carry is a long stemmed rose.

This year more and more flowers are being used in the hair and headwear, for brides and bridesmaids. Fresh flower add an extra accent to the picture hats which are so popular and are often tied to any streamers which may extend down the back of the head from a hat or other type headpeice.

Boutonnieres for men of the wedding party vary from daisies to carnations and roses; although the trend seems to be with the latter two.

Area florists report that people seem to be using more flowers and certainly not less than in the past.

Florists like to know one month in advance of the wedding what the bride's plans are --- and two weeks at the latest. Arranging for flowers in plenty of time will assure the bride of getting the flowers and equipment she wants and needs.

Area brides prefer feminine look

Nostalgia trend reflects in gowns

Today's trend toward nostalgia, individualism and freedom are all reflected in the bridal gowns for summer and fall.

Summer brides in Southeast Missouri have been sticking mainly with the long, white gown. Beyond that basic description, details of the gowns being selected vary greatly, as indicated by a survey of bridal shops in the area.

Ruffles around the shoulders and necklines and flounces at the hemlines have been very popular this year among Bootheel brides. The survey indicates that very feminine fashions are most often selected by brides-to-be, and ruffles are certainly a dominant feature of this look.

Although the bouffant skirts are also making comebacks in popularity, a line skirts are retaining their popularity also. Most skirts being selected fall from an empire or crescent waistline. The crescent waistline--one which is higher than the natural waistline in front and extends down to the natural waistline in back--has been very popular in Southeast Missouri for bridal gowns.

Southeast Missouri brides are mainly choosing gowns with skirts which sweep into a relatively short train in the back.

One store employee indicated they have not sold a single southern belle styled dress---one with lots of heavy lace and yards and yards of material in the skirt.

Along with the feminine ruffles and bouffant skirts, area brides are looking for a softer, more flowing fabric. The newst fabric--and one which has been enjoying some popularity--is knit and jersey. The knits are especially popular among the older brides.

Although long sleeves have remained popular, even for summer wear, sleeveless gowns have shown a rise in popularity in the Bootheel. Those wearing long sleeves this summer have mainly chosen gowns with sheer bishop sleeves.

Two of area bridal shops reported that this is the first season they have sold any large amount of short-sleeved or sleeveless gowns. Most of the sleeveless gowns being favored by Southeast missouri young women have either a cape on the shoulders or ruffles which extend over the shoulder for a very short cape-like effect.

Necklines have experienced a change over the past year also. Although many young women still prefer the seemingly ever-popular high neckline, many Southeast Missouri brides are choosing scooped necklines---an indication of a cool look.

Embroidery trims and laces have also taken on a different look. Area young women are no longer seeking gowns with heavy lace, but rather are favoring the lighter, softer pu laces as accents on the gowns, the survey indicated

Although most brides are still choosing the all-white gowns, more and more candlelight ivory gowns are being shown and chosen--especially for fall. A few bridal shops report that they are selling as many of the ivory gowns as of the white gowns.

A hint of color is also being added to the many bridal gowns and is becoming more and more popular. Embroidery trims and laces often have a ribbon of color running through them. Pink is most often chosen for this "hint of color."

For headwear, area bridal shops disagree on what type is the most popular.

Among Bootheel brides, there seems to be a popularity toss-up between hats and the mantillas. The wide-brimmed hats--often with ripple brims and a veil streaming from the back—were reported by several stores to be the accessory most often chosen for summer bridal gowns. Brides of this area seem to like the sheer hats with the straw look.

Mantilla veils--especially those which can be worn as capes--have also been popular in the area this spring and fall.

Next in popularity are the short veils. Most shops report that very few of the long veils are being chosen because of the great number of trains on the gowns.

For those who want something unusual, there is the gown with an attached hood--one of the newest looks in bridal gowns. Several of these soft, flowing dresses have been sold in this Southeast Missouri, according to the survey.

No matter what style or color of gowns are chosen, Southeast Missouri brides are sure to look lovely for their wedding day.

Ruffles popular

For the economy-minded bride-to-be, a dress made at home may be just the answer. This feminine, old-fashioned looking gown was designed by Laura Ashley of England. Her nostalgic fashion approach coincides with the rage for Victorian and Edwardian clothes. Ruffles are very popular this summer and the bonnet is a new approach to headwear for brides. This gown, made from a McCall pattern, is perfict in keeping with the feminine look of today.

ENSURING HAPPINESS

To ensure happiness, the bride and groom cut the first piece of wedding cake together. Then they feed a small piece of cake to each other at the same time.

Allow plenty of time for gown

Bridal dress to be made-to-order? Be sure to allow plenty of time. Six to eight weeks is usual, and it may be advisable to allow more time than that, if you want to be sure the gown is absolutely perfect.

Bridal veil worn to denote modesty

The bridal veil is thought to have originated as a protection against evil spirits, but it also denotes modesty. A crown of orange blossoms worn by the bride symbolizes fertility and fidelity.

Bride, groom help bolster today's sagging economy

The girl in the elaborate white gown flowing down the aisle on her father's arm may not look like the symbol of an $8 billion market, but she is. There will be an estimated 2,307,000 weddings in 1974, and more than 75 per cent of them will be first mrarriages.

These brides do not seem to be anguishing over inflation, rising unemployment figures, or frightening talk about a serious recession. Nothing keeps them from following through with their plans for a formal wedding and reception.

While married couples may be angry about increased costs of food, utilities and aasoline, the bride-to-be and her groom , with money saved in the bank, are accepting inflationary prices. They have no choice, for they must make the major purchases for their first home. Many of the luxuries, in the form of shower and wedding gifts, will be supplied by family and friends. In all ,the total cost of weddings and receptions this year will be $2 billion, according to one trade source.

The tip of this economic iceberg is the very visible wedding gown and the attendants' dresses. For the bride, who is as traditional today as her parents could wish, the average amount spent on the gown is $243, up more than 100 per cent from a decade ago. The total cost of all bridesmaids' dresses in the weding aprty averages about $195.

Receptions, which vary in style from one part of the country to another from formal sit down dinners in the northeast to champagne punch and wedding cake in some parts of the south, average out to $721. Yet, parents of 21 per cent of the brides who have receptions spend from $1,000 to $2,000 and over.

It is even more significant that $6 billion will be spent on furnishing first homes.

Wedding day dreams

Many bridal accessories are available for a bride and groom to help them make their special day extra special. Rick Standridge, and Debbie Paxton thinking of their wedding day to come as they look at bride and groom champagne glasses, which they decide would be just right for their reception. The couple will be married Sunday in Malone Park.

Romans introduce cake

The Romans were among the first to introduce the use of cake at the ceremony. They broke their salty-mealed cake over the bride's head at the end of the rites, and the crumbs were gathered by guests as good-luck tokens.

In 15th century England wedding guests brought small cakes and put them in the center of the table. Usually this created quite a pile. The bride and groom then tried to reach across the pile of cakes and to kiss, without knocking the pile over.

Later, in France, a traveling baker conceived the idea of icing all the small cakes together into one large impressive cake..thus, we have today the tiered wedding cake.

Today the caterer may not be designated to make the wedding cake. Frequently the bride, sometimes with her maids and—or their familes, bake the cake and the good things just a few days before the wedding. This has taken its place among the pleasant pre-nuptial traditions which many many young people enjoy.

Raposo Promoting Self-Esteem

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

"The rest of my life, I'm going to spend doing the best job I can to tell other people how wonderful they are. That's me in a nutshell," says song writer Joe Raposo.

Raposo, who has done lots of things in his 36 years but is best known as music director for "Sesame Street" on TV, says, "I don't think there is any room for self-pity in lyrics. I'm trying to make a positive comment on life, to celebrate the good things. There is an enormous amount of good around." With the assassination of the Kennedys, the Vietnam War, and the loss of confidence in the President, Raposo says, "We started celebrating freaky values. But I think we've come into a new time. I think people now want warm, good, romantic things."

One of the songs that Raposo wrote for "Sesame Street" was "It's Not Easy Being Green," the last song Frank Sinatra recorded before he retired. "We had a frog character on the show. Kermit is very nervous, gregarious, always in control. John Stone, the producer of the show, suggested I write about what he's really like when he's all by himself. I started thinking about frogs. They're essentially unattractive. What the song is about is that he's still something quite marvelous, an individual, with his own sense of self-worth. The best of people or the worst is what's on the inside and what they think of themselves.

"Don Costa, Sinatra's record producer, was visiting his children and his ex-wife played the Sesame Street record for him and told him that was a song she thought would be perfect for Frank. He took the record from his children and played it for Frank."

With the assassination of the Kennedys, the Vietnam War, and the loss of confidence in the President, Raposo says, "We started celebrating freaky values. But I think we've come into a new time. I think people now want warm, good, romantic things."

One of the songs that Raposo wrote for "Sesame Street" was "It's Not Easy Being Green," the last song Frank Sinatra recorded before he retired. "We had a frog character on the show. Kermit is very nervous, gregarious, always in control. John Stone, the producer of the show, suggested I write about what he's really like when he's all by himself. I started thinking about frogs. They're essentially unattractive. What the song is about is that he's still something quite marvelous, an individual, with his own sense of self-worth. The best of people or the worst is what's on the inside and what they think of themselves.

"Don Costa, Sinatra's record producer, was visiting his children and his ex-wife played the Sesame Street record for him and told him that was a song she thought would be perfect for Frank. He took the record from his children and played it for Frank."

Rice bags take time

Ever wonder who makes the rice bags for a wedding? Usually it is the brides family or friends. Debbie Paxton and Rick Standridge, who will be married Sunday, got help from their families in this process. The youth working on the bags discovered that this project takes lots of time, but is fun with everyone together. Making the bags are from left Brenda Imhoff, Liz Paxton, Debi Imhoff and Jeanne Imhoff.

RICE

From early beginnings, newlyweds have been showered with the "rice of abundance."

Social Security needs bride's new name

CAPE GIRARDEAU — June brides should remember to change their name with social security, reminds Gary Eason, social security district manager.

"No matter which month she's married in, a bride should give us her new name so we can keep her social security card and her earnings record accurate and up to date," Eason said. "Then earnings she had both before and after her marriage can be correctly credited to the same record."

Earnings women have in jobs covered by social security will determine the amount of their cash benefits -- "and not just when they retire," according to Eason. " During their working years, women also build disability, survivors, and Medicare protection for themselves and their families," he said.

To get her name changed on her record, a new bride can call or write any social security office. "Or," Eason said, "she can use a form available at any post office and at many employer personnel offices."

For more information, call your nearest social security office.

Bride's gift sentimental

While much of the wedding spotlight focuses on the bride, it does take two, and the groom does come in for his share of gift-giving and receiving.

Perhaps the gift with the greatest sentimental value is the gift the groom gives to his soon-to-be wife when she accepts his marriage proposal. While most of us think of the engagement present as the traditional ring, it doesn't necessarily have to be so. With conventions constantly changing and most couples eager to do their own thing.

HAPPY DREAMS!

According to tradition, an unmarried girl who sleeps with a slice of wedding cake under her pillow will dream of her future husband.

Print your wedding

From newspaper's point of view

By JACKIE SCHOENEMAN
Women's Editor

Trends. Trends. Trends. They're nice if they suit your community. Many women's pages today have allowed weddings and engagements to slide off the page and into the wastebasket in an effort to emphasize current and controversial issues affecting everyone.

Although the revolution in women's sections or pages is refreshing and sorely needed, it can be overdone. A majority of women do marry and marriage is one of the biggest decisions a man or woman makes. So, why shouldn't the end result of that decision be given space and coverage?

This, then, would cover both ends of a woman's lifestyle. And balance is what any woman's section should reflect. Omissions of weddings is how circulation is slowly whittled down.

Gone are the days of large wedding pictures and a page or half page of wedding story where flowery descriptions and name-dropping reigned throughout.

The Daily Standard, since early April, has adopted this formula for balance and has reduced minor wedding details. There are several reasons for this. Wedding stories should include only those details of interest to a broad range of people, because hopefully, a number of people will be reading the women's page.

The general public is not interested in every detail of a wedding but will read what the couple's educational background is, place of employment and where they will live. And, of course, they may check to see who the principal members of the wedding party were.

In addition, a long wedding story gobbles up too much space that can be used to present others who are in the news.

This is especially true with the soaring costs of newsprint. Newspapers must cram as much news as possible in the least amount of pages to save money. Thus, the shortened wedding story.

The best way to publish your wedding is to pick up a form (there is only one type) at the front office or at the women's desk at The Daily Standard office, 205 S. New Madrid St. Business hours are from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Forms will be mailed if a self-addressed, stamped envelop is included.

Only write down the information requested on the form. Additional copy will be deleted and wasted effort on your part. This is why we have a form because it asks what we need, hopefully cuts down on errors and will speed publication of your wedding. We want to print as many weddings as soon as possible.

Whenever you mention anyone in the wedding party, include his Sikeston route or street address and if from out of town, include the town and state. Do not forget to include the date of wedding.

It is wise to tell your photographer youwant a black and white portrait made from a color photo to be sent immediately to the newspaper. Do not wait until you receive the complete wedding portfolio as it may take longer than the three-week deadline. If your wedding is important news, then let's treat it as news -- current.

If you plan to leave town after the wedding, have a friend or mother who is on the ball, to drop the photo and form by the newspaper office. If the photographer lags behind, keep calling until you get results.

Color pictures are discouraged because of usually poor reproduction qualities. We do use some color photos if our photo technicians say a photo will not turn out a big, black blob in the paper. If they veto it, we will not run it. We want to look good as a newspaper and at the same time, we want you to look good.

Pictures will be returned after the photo is run in the newspaper and if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is provided. Please do not forget to send an envelope large enough to hold a picture.

We believe a wedding is an integral part of the news because it is what is happening to you. Therefore, we do not charge for running weddings, engagements or anniversaries. We are happy to publish them.

Shoe tradition begins in Egypt

Ever wonder how that old wedding tradition of tying shoes to a newlyweds car got started?

In ancient Egypt and in England in the Middle Ages, the bride's father gave one of her shoes to the groom to signify that he was transferring his authority over her.

In Asian countries, shoes are symbols of good luck and fertility.

Bride sews her gown

Debbie Paxton of Sikeston puts the finishing touches on her bridal gown. Miss Paxton decided to make her gown in order to have just what she wanted and to have a different look. She will become the bride of Rick Standridge Sunday in Malone Park. (Daily Standard photo)

Area mothers choosing long gowns for wedding

In wedding attire, mothers will take second place only to the bride during weddings this summer and fall in Southeast Missouri.

Several years ago, almost every mother of a bride or groom was wearing a short, elaborately fashioned and detailed formal dress. But today, a new look has taken over.

No longer are mothers wearing short gowns. They are now choosing flowing, floor-length gowns of more simple styling.

While bridesmaids are leaning more towards lots of color and designs or floral prints, mothers in Southeast Missouri are mainly seeking the solid color gown. But, even with the solid color, mothers are choosing brighter, more colorful gowns.

Pastel which match the colors fused for the wedding party seem to be the most popular among mothers as the mark of a special day.

Photos capture magic

A wedding is like a stage show with the bridal couple as producer, director and leading star. Small wonder most brides rely on professional help — like those offered by a wedding photographer — to get the show on the road.

Portrait experts suggest that brides plan early for their wedding photography, especially if the event is scheduled for the peak "bridal months" — June , July, August or December — when most professional photographers have a tight schedule.

About the time the gown is ordered and arrangements are made for the reception, consult a photographer about the many types of wedding portraiture he can provide. Today's traditional prewedding bridal portrait is often taken in such non-traditional locations as an outdoor park, or even the bride's own living room. And many couples prefer both bride and groom to be shown in this formal portrait.

In addition to the wedding portrait, photographers also take informal photographs during the course of the wedding events. These candid portraits are suitable for home display, for gifts to parents and close relatives, and for thank-you cards as well as for wedding photo albums.

Many photographers provide a pre-setting conference to discuss all the details you should know before your date with the camera. At this time the location for the wedding portrait can be decided, the style of the photograph, and the makeup and hairstyles which are m ost flattering. For the portrait sitting, you will want to have on hand everything you will wear for the ceremony — gown, shoes, gloves, necklace and veil. Your photographer may be able to provide a bridal bouquet for the sake of photography.

Like any professional, a portrait photographer has spent years training and studying to learn his art. In taking a "good picture" he looks for the best lighting and setting, he takes pictures which show his subjects to advantage and he captures the mood of the occasion.

Memories in pictures

Pictures of a wedding provide memories in the years to come. Shown selecting pictures of their April 12 wedding are Vernon Dell Pritchett and his wife, the former Dymisha Miller, of East Prairie.

SeMo couples prefer traditional invitations

Selecting wedding invitations is probably not as easy today as it once was because of the many new styles, colors and wording that can be chosen.

Even though there are so many styles and new colors, Southeast Missouri couples seem to be staying mainly with the traditional pure white or ivory, plain and formal invitations.

One slight variation of this, which has enjoyed some popularity in this area is the embossed--or raised-floral design in the corners of formal invitations.

Most businesses in Sikeston which handle printed invitations report that the traditional plain white or ivory invitation with the traditional wording, has been the most popular for this area.

A couple of the businesses reported that the new floral and light-pastel colored invitations have been selling best for them. The invitations with flowers or short saying on the front are relatively new to the invitation line, and have experienced some popularity, especially among couples who are looking for the unusual or individual look.

Heavily decorated invitations have not been popular, but those with just a few, small,. inobtrusive flowers have gained in popularity in this area recently.

Many, who are not choosing the colored paper for invitations, are choosing the new colored inks to add a special touch.

In addition to the new designs for paper, some new and strikingly different wording styles are being chosen.

The survey indicated that the traditional wording is still the most popular in this area. Traditional being..."Mr. and Mrs. (bride's parents), request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter....."

Modern etiquette no longer dictates that wedding invitations must be worded as above.

The second in popularity in Southeast Missouri is the following: Mr. and Mrs. (Blank) and Mr. and Mrs. (so-and-so) invite you to share in the joy of the marriage uniting—(or of the beginning of their new life together of)— their children....T...(names)) This celebration of love will be...."

There are many variations to the above, but all begin with both parents issuing the invitation.

Another new form is "bride's name) and (groom's name) together with their parents (bride's parents) and (groom's parents) invite you to share in the joy of the beginning of their new life together when they exchange vows."

Still another invitation possibility--although one that has not been popular among area couples--is written in paragraph form and might read: "We two, (bride and groom) have found each other in this world of confusion. We have come to love, trust and understand the other, which by working with God shall outlast our own human lives. We ask you as our family and friends to witness this dedication of love and our need to be as one for always in the matrimonial wedding vows. (date time, etc.)

Actually, today, the emphasis seems to be on individualism. Some couples are even writing their own wedding, although in Southeast Missouri couples seem to be choosing one from the many samples.

Each wedding invitation is special, and individual, whether it be traditional or unusual, because of the special people about whom it is written.

CHOOSE DIAMONDS EARLY

Modern etiquette permits asking the bride to help select her d iamond gift. This should be done well in advance of the wedding day, so she may consider it in planning her bridal attire.

Pendant, pin or earclips, her diamond jewelry can complement her gown, in design and placement.

Photos capture magic

A wedding is like a stage show with the bridal couple as producer, director and leading star. Small wonder most brides rely on professional help — like those offered by a wedding photographer — to get the show on the road.

Portrait experts suggest that brides plan early for their wedding photography, especially if the event is scheduled for the peak "bridal months" — June , July, August or December — when most professional photographers have a tight schedule.

About the time the gown is ordered and arrangements are made for the reception, consult a photographer about the many types of wedding portraiture he can provide. Today's traditional prewedding bridal portrait is often taken in such non-traditional locations as an outdoor park, or even the bride's own living room. And many couples prefer both bride and groom to be shown in this formal portrait.

In addition to the wedding portrait, photographers also take informal photographs during the course of the wedding events. These candid portraits are suitable for home display, for gifts to parents and close relatives, and for thank-you cards as well as for wedding photo albums.

Many photographers provide a pre-setting conference to discuss all the details you should know before your date with the camera. At this time the location for the wedding portrait can be decided, the style of the photograph, and the makeup and hairstyles which are m ost flattering. For the portrait sitting, you will want to have on hand everything you will wear for the ceremony — gown, shoes, gloves, necklace and veil. Your photographer may be able to provide a bridal bouquet for the sake of photography.

Like any professional, a portrait photographer has spent years training and studying to learn his art. In taking a "good picture" he looks for the best lighting and setting, he takes pictures which show his subjects to advantage and he captures the mood of the occasion.

Memories in pictures

Pictures of a wedding provide memories in the years to come. Shown selecting pictures of their April 12 wedding are Vernon Dell Pritchett and his wife, the former Dymisha Miller, of East Prairie.

SeMo couples prefer traditional invitations

Selecting wedding invitations is probably not as easy today as it once was because of the many new styles, colors and wording that can be chosen.

Even though there are so many styles and new colors, Southeast Missouri couples seem to be staying mainly with the traditional pure white or ivory, plain and formal invitations.

One slight variation of this, which has enjoyed some popularity in this area is the embossed--or raised-floral design in the corners of formal invitations.

Most businesses in Sikeston which handle printed invitations report that the traditional plain white or ivory invitation with the traditional wording, has been the most popular for this area.

A couple of the businesses reported that the new floral and light-pastel colored invitations have been selling best for them. The invitations with flowers or short saying on the front are relatively new to the invitation line, and have experienced some popularity, especially among couples who are looking for the unusual or individual look.

Heavily decorated invitations have not been popular, but those with just a few, small, inobtrusive flowers have gained in popularity in this area recently.

Many, who are not choosing the colored paper for invitations, are choosing the new colored inks to add a special touch.

In addition to the new designs for paper, some new and strikingly different wording styles are being chosen.

The survey indicated that the traditional wording is still the most popular in this area. Traditional being..."Mr. and Mrs. (bride's parents), request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter....."

Modern etiquette no longer dictates that wedding invitations must be worded as above.

The second in popularity in Southeast Missouri is the following: Mr. and Mrs. (Blank) and Mr. and Mrs. (so-and-so) invite you to share in the joy of the marriage uniting—(or of the beginning of their new life together of)— their children....T...(names)) This celebration of love will be...."

There are many variations to the above, but all begin with both parents issuing the invitation.

Another new form is "bride's name) and (groom's name) together with their parents (bride's parents) and (groom's parents) invite you to share in the joy of the beginning of their new life together when they exchange vows."

Still another invitation possibility--although one that has not been popular among area couples--is written in paragraph form and might read: "We two, (bride and groom) have found each other in this world of confusion. We have come to love, trust and understand the other, which by working with God shall outlast our own human lives. Each wedding invitation is special, and individual, whether it be traditional or unusual, because of the special people about whom it is written.

Color, hats popular for area bridesmaids

Color -- and lots of it -- and hats are the key words for bridesmaids attire being selected in Southeast Missouri this summer.

The emphasis this year is on selecting a style of dress which the bridesmaids in a wedding party can wear again and again, a survey of area bridal shops indicated. In past years, most bridesmaids dresses were designed specifically for weddings and were often not really appropriate for other use.

Brides are for their bridesmaids choosing bright colors and rainbow colors.

A particularly popular style this year has beenthe halter dress with short jacket and cape. The popularity of the halter in all areas of women's clothing, makes this style particularly suitable for other wear.

Hats are the mainly chosen for headwear for bridesmaids. Second in popularity in the Bootheel are flowers connected in the hair or on streamers extending from the top of the head.

Bridesmaids colorful

Jan Marcus of Sikeston models a bridesmaids gown, typical of the style most popular this year. Hats have been extremely popular this year for bridesmaids as have ruffles for the feminine look. This one, at a local bridal shop, is shown in pink with white dots. The hat being held is popular among area brides.

Kitchen shower useful

Any couple getting married will probably find that a kitchen shower is the most useful over the years.

From these special showers, a bride will acquire the basic necessities and the useful conveniences needed in today's modern kitchens. Depending on the shower, she may also acquire many, new recipes with which to use throughout her married life.

One variation of the kitchen shower is the recipe shower. Each guest brings one or more of her favorite recipes (or one of her friends' recipes) and, as an especially attractive plus, maybe even the dish itself. Some of the guests might prefer to join with the container in which the recipe is baked or cooked.

Another shower hostess might prefer to have a wine shower, which presents all types of possibilities. Activities could include guessing games which tie in with the foods served, or bringing in an expert to discuss wines. Of course, gifts could include wine glasses of suitable sizes or wines.

In selecting any type of shower, consider the bridal couple first and foremost. If, as are most young people, they are interested in exploring gastronomic avenues, and shower keyed to such pleasures can be a great success.

FOR THE BRIDE

Traditionally, diamond earclips for the bride are of simple design, styled in the manner of a cluster or a small scroll. Some pairs are made with diamond drops.

Flexibility in furnishings necessary

A husband is the only permanent fixture a new bride should insist on for her first home.

Newlyweds should be flexible about furnishings. Trousseau money should be where it will mean the most — in a good bed, in a durable sofa, in an important rug. The gaps can be filled in with imagination.

Too often a new couple is tempted to "wait till we can afford exactly what we want." And so they live on and on with echoes and empty spaces, apologetically putting their friends on floor pillows and propping the TV up on bricks.

Decorating done on a shoestring needn't look down at the heels. In fact, being short on funds can force a couple to be long on ideas that really give a room personality.

TIPS ON GETTING ALONG AFTER THE WEDDING

Holding a grudge can become a slow poison that can actually destroy a marriage, so don't overlook even a seemingly small slight. Each day should be a fresh start on new joys together. Beware bottled-up anger waiting to explode.

Dreaming of future

Popularity in china and crystal patterns have changed greatly over the past few years. Several years ago the simple china plate with a silver or gold band was popular. But today brides will be setting their tables with more colorful, yet just as delicate, dinnerware. Julia Margaret Fitzgerald and C. Mont Mitchell of Sikeston are happy with their selection. They will be married June 21.

Ceremony profoundly meaningful

For a couple about to be married, a simple ceremony is all that is lacking to make this event one of the most important steps in their lives.

Most ceremonies in the Southeast Missouri area are still performed in the traditional form...with established statements. But, today as never before, young people are individualizing their wedding ceremonies more and more by writing their own vows or adding their own touches to the traditional ceremony.

The wedding ceremony can be a profoundly meaningful experience and a look at parts of the ceremony and its words helps one better understand the full significance of this event.

"I take thee to be my lawful wedded wife (or husband)." Most ceremonies focus attention on this statement or one very similar written by the couple. It makes it clear that the two people are taking this step of their own free will. They are not "being" married, they are "marrying."

Therefore, marriage is a private matter. Although other people will be listening to the promises of the vows, the couple is looking at and speaking to each other.

The importance of the vows cannot be overemphasized. These promises are not conditional. They are simple, straightforward declarations of their intention to give each self fully to his or her mate.

"In the presence of these witnesses..." Although marriage is a private affair, it is also public. The law requires marriage in the presence of witnesses, but there is another and more important reason for witnesses.

There is valuable symbolism in the presence of family and friends. It means that the bride and groom are not alone. As they begin their new life together, they do so with encouragement and support of many others.

"In the sight of God..." Persons of faith look upon marriage as a religious matter. The Catholic Church calls it a sacrament. Protestants and Jews believe that it is divinely ordained. All three groups, therefore, regard the couple as united not simply by mutual agreement and by the law of the state but by God himself.

A survey of recent records of marriage licenses, shows that this faith is important to the majority of persons beginning their life together, in that most are married by a minister. In the United States, out of every 10 weddings, nine are religious services. In Southeast Missouri, the figures seem to be higher.

"I pronounce them..." The person who performs the ceremony is the agent of some recognized authority. Since marriage is not simply personal, but also social and, for many people, religious, a third party is necessary. The official who performs the ceremony represents the social and religious elements. His presence and activity make it impossible for the couple to forget that in marriage they are are obligated to a power beyond themselves.

"...husband and wife." At the end of the ceremony the couple will be called "husband and wife." Although upon hearing those words, the couple will have arrived, the arrival is just a beginning.

They are now entering into a new relationship. But the union is not automatic. The couple will achieve it by shared experiences. There will be many adjustments to make and a necessity to learn to live together in fulfillment of the promises made.

Using all the resources each has, any couple can become, through experience, what legally they have been declared: husband and wife.

BRIDE'S GARTER

The bride's garter had its origin as a good luck tradition during the time of chivalrous knights. In 14th century France, the bride tossed her garter to the unmarried guests to point out the next to be married. Today's bride throws her bouquet to the maiden girls, while the garter is tossed to "seal the fate of the bachelor gay."

Fight fairly in marriage

Brides, do not hit your husband over the head with family or personal problems as soon as he comes home from work. Instead give him 35 to 40 minutes to himself to "shift gears" from the work world to a personal, familiar world.

Newlyweds must learn to 'roll with punches'

By JACKIE SCHOENEMAN
Women's Editor

After the whoop-de-do of a wedding is over, two people suddenly have to learn to "roll with the punches" to keep their marriage interesting and most of all, peaceful.

According to Liz Ferrell, registered nurse and Outreach counselor for Farmington State Hospital, the key is self-acceptance. In order to communicate with another person and understand him or her, a wife or husband has to know himself.

Self-acceptance often comes in developmental stages. The first stage is to start listening to messages or actual feelings you are afraid to admit you have, Mrs. Ferrell says.

"Tell yourself, 'I need to live successfully.' Once you take action, that's another chink in self-acceptance."

Mrs. Ferrell aso suggests listing good and bad personality points on paper. A person is often afraid to list the good because "we're often taught it's bragging. But once you have done this objectively, then you know the list is you and you can change yourself."

The second stage is to understand yourself by looking at the components of your personality. Begin by asking yourself where you got the feelings and what and why things are important to you, Mrs. Ferrell says.

The majority of personality make-up comes from parents and other close relatives and objectively ask yourself if their views on life work for you, she says. "Don't judge them but deal with memories."

Take out a bad memory and treat it as a portion of your whole make-up. When it becomes a small part, the fire is taken out of it. Begin to be your own best friend."

A sign of self-acceptance taking hold is when the person discovers he can communicate to people around him without apologizing or bragging, Mrs. Ferrell says.

In the book, "I A'int Much Baby, But It's All I've Got" by Jess Lair, he says honesty and openess between two people are attained when each accepts himself and feels comfortable talking to each other. "He goes on to say when you are real to someone and a husband is real back, there is a warm feeling created hat reallyy says something precious and important is happening between the two people.

Talking and sharing is caring. There can be silent communication in a marriage but only if the ability to communicate verbally is there first."

In addition, once a person accepts himself, he is often more tolerant of others. He is not selfish. He is able to give and receive love and begins to feel worthwhile to himself and others, Mrs. Ferrell says. Dr. William Glasser, a noted physician, say this is the equasion for successful living.

With an identity, a spouse can begin to care without fearing the risk of hurt. "If by chance you do get hurt, self-acceptance will not let the bad experience destroy you. Allow yourself to say, "It just didn't work,'"

However, "rocky" or difficult times in marriage do occur often because a couple's expectations of marriage are too high, Mrs. Ferrell says.

"No one person will meet all your needs nor will you meet his needs. It's too heavy a demand because we are too complex. It cannot be done."

When a husband feels this demand, he becomes somebody he is not and he cannot live with this for 60 years. Don't create pedestals. It is better to be realistic and accept the humaness of the other person." The definition of marriage is a creative compact between two people where each helps the other realize his full potential."

However, Mrs. Ferrell says fights or (talking argumentatively) in a marriage are quite natural. To smooth things, she suggests a wife allow a husband 30-45 minutes to himself to "shift gears" from the work world to a personal, familial world. After this becomes a routine and a husband asks his wife about her day, he will probably mean it. Then the wife can talk about family problems, she says.

In addition, the husband must meet his wife halfway by having "the guts to disclose his problems and insecurities he feels at work."

Rather than transferring his frustrations on his wife by griping about what she cooked for supper, "he should stop and say, 'Hey, I'm not the big strong man! A wife should respond by assuring a husband how important he is to her. Then his equasion for well-being is back in shape."

Also, a couple should establish a "share time" after each has done his separate evening activity such as sewing or doing crossword puzzles. Most often share time is either early in the morning or late at night, Mrs. Ferrell said.

Once this is formulated, really listen to each other by sifting through the words or reading through the lines until the person can honestly express himself. "If a spouse starts saying something unpleasant, allow the conservation to continue. If you stop, he will resent it and glorify what he intended to say in his head."

To develop complete honesty in marriage, "do not start right off the bat because usually it cannot be achieved instantly. Develop it in small quantities. As you build trust, the person will accept you. It is an uncomfortable feeling at first but it brings the rewards of love and freedom. It's an exhilaration feeling to know someone knows your strength and weaknesses."

It is also important for a person to take time for himself. Private time or "healthy selfishness" is allowing time during the day to read a book rather than jumping up and fixing a snack every time a child

Fight fairly in marriage

Brides, do not hit your husband over the head with family or personal problems as soon as he comes home from work. Instead give him 35 to 40 minutes to himself to "shift gears" from the work world to a personal, familiar world.

Newlyweds must learn to 'roll with punches'

By JACKIE SCHOENEMAN
Women's Editor

After the whoop-de-do of a wedding is over, two people suddenly have to learn to "roll with the punches" to keep their marriage interesting and most of all, peaceful.

According to Liz Ferrell, registered nurse and Outreach counselor for Farmington State Hospital, the key is self-acceptance. In order to communicate with another person and understand him or her, a wife or husband has to know himself.

Self-acceptance often comes in developmental stages. The first stage is to start listening to messages or actual feelings you are afraid to admit you have, Mrs. Ferrell says.

"Tell yourself, 'I need to live successfully.' Once you take action, that's another chink in self-acceptance."

Mrs. Ferrell aso suggests listing good and bad personality points on paper. A person is often afraid to list the good because "we're often taught it's bragging. But once you have done this objectively, then you know the list is you and you can change yourself."

The second stage is to understand yourself by looking at the components of your personality. Begin by asking yourself where you got the feelings and what and why things are important to you, Mrs. Ferrell says.

The majority of personality make-up comes from parents and other close relatives and objectively ask yourself if their views on life work for you, she says. "Don't judge them but deal with memories."

demands it, for instance. Mrs. Ferrell says if he is able, let him fix it. "Then you won't resent him for taking your free time. A person who denies his personal needs is an ineffectual giver. He will only be more demanding."

Likewise, a couple should retain their separate identities in marriage. "It is not a compliment to depend totally on a person. This is only an ego trip and not sustaining. Do what you need for yourself but share your thoughts and feelings."

This is especially true when the husband begins to grow as a human being. He should tell his wife about his growth to keep her in touch and vice versa."

The bedroom also can cause havoc in marriage. "The basis of a good sex life is to communicate your joys, thoughts and concerns. A wife must have the courage to say this makes me feel tight but this makes me feel good. He'll respond and you'll love him more because he knows how you honestly feel. Only through talking, will a couple learn what lovemakinng style is mutually enjoyable."

Mrs. Ferrell notes sometimes couples "may hit a snag" and need help or even friends. Seek help right away as preventive medicine. Do not wait 15 years and allow roles to become so set that it takes a chisel to chip them away. Too often, marriages are endured rather than treasured and relished.

Your spouse chose you because you are you. Marriage offers a unique opportunity to be loved for yourself."

TOASTING

Toasting comes from an ancient French custom of placing bread in the bottom of the glass--a good toaster drained the drink to get the "toast." According to legend, when a bride and groom drink their wedding toast, whoever finishes first will rule the family.

Dinnerware should match lifestyle

Who goes with the bride-to-be when she sets out to select her dinnerware to set up housekeeping?

Traditionally, it was mother who accompanied her daughter. There is growing evidence today that the prospective bride looks more and more to her husband-to-be in choosing her cookware, flatware, dinnerware and appliances.

This is probably a good idea, because the couple have a better idea of their intended lifestyle and should choose housewares, particualry dinnerware, with this in mind.

No matter who goes with her, some basic preparation is important. Because dinnerware is a major investment, careful thought and planning should go into the decision. Things other than pattern should be weighed by the couple. The wise bride-to-be will ask many questions in preparation for the actual selection. Will it fit our life style? How long will it last? Is it readily available? What about design? Does its cost fit our budget?

It is said that over 75 percent of the brides-to-be pre-select their cookware and dinnerware. One dinnerware manufacturer believes it has a responsibility to bring the bride-to-be back to the real world in which she will be living. This means asking questions.

Will it fit our life style? Consider the type and pattern to suit your way of life and your general style of entertaining—casual, formal or practical. Imagine using different types and patterns—do you want plates with over-all color or basically white? Think about meals served on rimmed or coupe shaped plates. How easily is it stored?

How long will it last? Check the manufacturer's literature for information concerning chipping, cracking, crazing, staining and fading. Check on its use in the conventional and mocrowave oven or dishwasher.

Is it readily available? Is it available in open stock? Does the pattern offer an adequate variety of accessory items? Are there cook'n' serve pieces? Will the pattern be carried in open stock if the pattern is discontinued, and for how long?

What about design? Will food look appetizing on the pattern you are selecting? Consider colors and styles in your home—your eventual decorating plans. Is the dinnerware easy to handle? Are accessory items designed for multiple use? Is the cup balanced and is the handle large enough for a man to hold comfortably? Does the basic shape of plates, bowls and cups permit safe and easy stacking for storage?

Does cost fit into the budget? Does cost match the use? Does expected life of ware match the cost? If the current budget won't permit two sets of dinnerware, make sure the set selected is suitable for daily use and for more formal special occasions, too.

How long will it last? Does the dinnerware come with a guarantee or promise? What is the guarantee for replacement if a pattern is discontinued? How do you get it replaced—by the store or from the manufacturer?

If the prospective bride considers the possible uses to which she will put her dinnerware during the next five to ten years, she may select a dinnerware that will be best for her—and her family life style.

What's new in bedding

The modern mattress is a whole new concept.

It's bigger than old fashioned mattresses, with kingsize and queensize models best sellers. Plans are afoot to drop the old double bed and make the queensize the staple two-person mattress.

Modern mattresses have smooth surfaces— no more tufting buttons to poke the sleeper. Extra-thick layers of padding make them softer and more comfortable. Tickings are prettier and more colorful.

Bedroom furniture, linens and blankets have changed to keep in step with the bigger beds. The footboard is rarely seen today—it looks too massive with the bigger beds. As a result, headboards are more elaborate, with built-in bookshelves and electrical outlets for reading lights, radios and blankets.

WEDDING VEIL

The wedding veil, symbolizing a wife's submission to her husband, had its inception in days of old when a bride stood beneath a canopy to signify she was under the protection of her groom.
